Says Government Eager To Get Work Under Way On New Structure

Properties proposed or available as possible sites for New Castle's new $525,000 post office building were to be inspected in person either this afternoon or on Wednesday by site officials of both the U. S. Treasury and Post Office Departments from Washington, D. C., and Pittsburgh.

L. H. Blanton, federal site agent from Washington, arrived here shortly before noon to commence an investigation of the different locations. He anticipated the early arrival of M. V. Brown, lease supervisor of the post office department at Pittsburgh.

Both Mr. Blanton and Mr. Brown, or whoever the post office department at Pittsburgh sends, will visit more than 20 sites to determine their advantages and disadvantages for a post office building.

Procedure Outlined

Immediately on reaching the city, Mr. Blanton explained the procedure of site selection to The News. He said:

PA NEWC OBSERVES

A seventh ward resident calls to Pa Newc's attention a needed repair on Atlantic avenue. It is a hole in the cement at a small curve between the city line and Etna street, and for the sake of automobiles and peace of mind and jarred nerves won't somebody fill it with cement?

Just about the happiest youngster in town was noted by Pa Newc late Monday afternoon. He was coming out of a downtown store with a brand new baseball bat grasped in his hands.

The addition of 200 new workers on the State Highway Department payroll will help along conditions here, even though the work will last only two weeks. The workers have been recruited from Lawrence and Mercer counties.

Suit Against Mrs. Emery Is Given To Jury

Testimony Is Concluded By Defense At Monday Afternoon Session

HENDRIX SCORED BY ATTORNEY DICKEY

Plaintiff's Attorney Shows No Mercy In Arraigning Mrs. Emery

"She wanted David M. Mc-" Mahon," Attorney W. Walter Braham said in addressing the jury Monday afternoon in Esther V. McMahon's suit for $25,000 in county court against Mrs. M. Belle Emery for the alienation of her husband's affection. "Well let her have him, but compensate his wife so she can take her children and do the right thing by them," he said.

Attorney Braham showed no mercy in his denunciation of Mrs. Emery, who he characterized as an "an old woman seking the young blood of youth."

Scores Hendrix

Attorney Thomas W. Dickey, on the other hand, addressing the jury for the defense, blamed the entire case on Joseph H. Hendrix, whom he termed, "The Savior of the East Side." He asserted that if J. H. Hendrix had never existed the case would never have been brought.

The testimony in the case was concluded at 2:30 Monday afternoon, and after the customary mid-afternoon recess, the attorneys began their addresses to the jury, concluding just at five o'clock, after which the court announced a recess until this morning, when the charge

School Board Votes In Favor Of Time Change

Wednesday Morning Is Designated For Start Of New Schedule

LONG DEBATE AT MONDAY SESSION

Vote Of Board Is 6-2 In Favor Of Observing Daylight Time

At a special meeting of the New Castle board of education on Monday night, formal action to open the public schools one hour earlier than the schedule now in force and to close them an hour earlier in the afternoon than has been customary, was taken. School clocks, however, will remain on Eastern Standard time.

The school directors reached this decision after a long debate over the matter of altering the school hours finally closed. The board voted six to two in favor of the action, A. C. Hyde and J. H. McIlvenny responding "no" when the clerk called the roll. Mrs. J. C. B. Douthett was the only absent member, sickness in her family making it impossible for her to attend.

Decision Held Over

The hour change matter settled last night had been held over from another special meeting a short time ago, at which time the board had "tabled" it. Immediately after President Daniel Woolcock announced the business at hand last night, W. W. Duff, introduced the following resolution, which, after discussion, was adopted:

"The superintendent of schools is hereby directed to open the regular daily school session one hour earlier than the schedule now in force and close one hour earlier than that now in force, the time to be Eastern Standard time; this schedule to be in force during the remainder of the present semester, and to apply to the entire school organization, effective Wednesday morning, May 6."

Roy W. Hazen seconded Mr. Duff's motion after reminding the board of the confusion the two-time operation has already caused.

Objections Made

Chief objection to a switch from the slow to a fast time schedule came from Mr. Hyde and Mr. McIlvenny, who spoke for the Seventh ward district, the section which operates all summer on Eastern Standard.

"I wasn't at the last meeting of the board when the time change matter came up, but if I had of been I certainly would have voted against it—I'll still vote against it for I'm certainly opposed to any such action," began Mr. Hyde.

"I think the schools in our city should be run for the pupils and not for anyone else; its not our place to put hardships on them, and when you move the hours ahead you most assuredly put an extreme hardship on them. It not only affects the district from which we come, but the fifth, sixth and a part of the eighth wards and the Croton area as well.

Early Rising

"We're a school board meeting here to run the schools for the entire district and not for a select few or certain districts. Down in the Seventh ward, if you change to fast

Economic Leaders Of Europe Urge War Debt Cancellation By U. S.

Would Also Like America To Eliminate High Tariff Barriers

Three Europeans Ignore Hoover's Warning In Talk To I. C. C. Congress

By WM. K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 5—Politely ignoring the warning of President Hoover, three of Europes's outstanding economic leaders led the sixth Congress of the International Chamber of Commerce into controversial issues today by urging cancellation of world war debts and elimination of American tariff barriers, while pleading for International co-operation in restoring world prosperity.

President Hoover had declared the United States would not consent to any reconsideration of debt settlements.

First, Alberta Pirelli, Italian capitalist and friend of Mussolini chided the United States for its tariff walls, warning the barriers would destroy America's foreign trade. Then he calmly suggested a revision of debt settlements, declaring the debt payments were helping to postpone a recovery from world depression.

Then, Sir Alan G. Anderson, di-

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 5.—The small wrist watch worn by pretty Hazel Bradshaw when she was stabbed to death early Sunday by an unknown assailant offered one of the important clues today in the investigation.

The victims of the shootings were Miss Louise Gaudig, 17, of Johnstown, Pa., and Miss Geraldine Marko, 20, Cleveland. Physicians at Cleveland Clinic hospital, where Miss Gaudig was taken after receiving treatment at Mount Sinai hospital, reported her condition as critical.

The Pennsylvania girl was shot as she walked along an east side street with her cousin, Miss Olive Desmond, 16, with whom she was visiting in Cleveland, police said.

Miss Desmond informed police that as they were returning home from a nearby store, an automobile drove by them and they heard a shot. Her cousin collapsed, she said.

The girl was shot in the head. A portion of the bullet was removed from her brain in an extremely delicate operation today by Dr. William J. Gardner at Cleveland Clinic. A blood transfusion was to be administered later to strengthen the wounded girl.

Miss Marko was wounded in the neck on a west side street when an automobile drove by her as she was enroute home from church. Attaches at St. John's hospital said the girl's wounds were not serious.

The girl told police that a car came up close to her side and one of the men in the machine shot at her and then drove away quickly. She staggered to a nearby house and called police.

Sunday Baseball Bill Is Defeated In House Voting

Close Vote Of 102 To 98 For Amendment Falls Short Of Required Majority

MOVE IS MADE TO RECONSIDER

Senate And House Both Move Ahead With Heavy Calendars Today

By WM. B. BROWN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, May 5.—Defeated in the house last night, when that body cast 102 votes for and 98 against the amended Schwartz bill, Sunday baseball seemed likely to pop up in the legislature for further debate today.

The Schwartz Bill, as it came up for final passage, carried an amendment which would have legalized baseball on Sundays between 2 p. m. and 5:30 p. m. although it polled 102 votes in its favor, the bill fell three short of a constitutional majority and failed of passage.

But because of the closeness of the vote, Rep. Sowers, Philadelphia, who has led the fight for Sunday baseball, indicated a move would be made today to reconsider the vote by which the bill failed and have it reappear on the calendar.

Dead Tree Fell On Little Boy, $25,000 Asked

Peculiar Case Of Samuel Clark Is Taken Up Before Judge Cham-

TREE WAS BLOWN DOWN BY HIGH WIND

Owing to the absence of Attorney Edwin K. Logan at Pittsburgh today where he went in connection with a workmens' compensation case, the case of Samuel Clark, aged 6 years, by his parents Elmo and Maud Clark against Magdalene Bobiarz, could not be taken up before Judge Chambers until this afternoon.

The case is one in which the plaintiffs are seeking to recover, $25,000 from the defendant by reason of a tree falling upon Samuel Clark on his way home from school. Magdalene Bobiarz is the owner of a property at 1309 Pennsylvania avenue. There is an alley running from Long avenue to Lyndal street, back of the defendant's property. Along this alley is a fence and inside the fence stood an old dead tree.

On the afternoon of September 26, 1930 Samuel Clark was returning home from school. There was a high wind blowing. As he passed the dead tree it suddenly blew down. The boy was pinned under it. One leg was crushed and he was otherwise injured.

It is contended by the plaintiffs that the defendant knew that the tree was dead and unsafe, and that she was therefore negligent in permitting it to stand.

Jerry had been trying to sell a certain saddle horse he had for quite a while, but with no success. One day he heard of a man in the next county who was looking for just the horse he had. He, therefore, put his saddle on his horse and rode over to that town and there, strange to say, he succeeded in selling the horse. After Jerry made the sale and had obtained his money, he took the saddle off the horse—the sale did not include the saddle—and started up the street to look for possible transportation home.

As Jerry was thus walking, saddle on his shoulder, a deputy sheriff approached him and began to ask him questions. It seemed that there had been some horse stealing in that vicinity, in spite of this age of auto thefts, and the deputy was on the lookout for suspects. The answers Jerry gave him did not satisfy the deputy, and so Jerry was taken into custody. To make matters worse, this was Saturday afternoon and Jerry was kept in confinement until Monday morning. Monday he was arraigned and because of lack of evidence was released, but instead of going home, Jerry went to a lawyer and filed suit against the deputy.

made to "get" Barber. While leaving the Bradford hospital where he had been visiting his wife last year ar unidentified assailant opened fire.

Again, while walking the streets of Bradford, Barber was made the target for a hail of shotgun slugs. In each instance he escaped with only slight wounds.

Slayings Similar

Punxsutawney, Pa., May 5—The striking similarity between the killing of Joseph Barber near Bradford yesterday and the slaying of Isaac Hamilton, Punxsutawney barber who was taken for a ride two weeks ago, was given another twist today when Jefferson county detectives revealed Barber had been investigated as a suspect in Hamilton's murder.

No direct connection between Barber and the death of Hamilton who was lured from his barber shop by the promise of extra work, taken for a ride and killed, ever was developed detectives said.

PLANS MATURE FOR PILGRIMAGE TO HARRISBURG

James M. Smith, Sr., John A. Butler, David S. Pyle, and Samuel Moore will go by train, leaving New Castle over the Pennsylvania railroad at 10:20 p. m. E. S. T., Wednesday, May 6. They will return the next morning at 6:42 E. S. T.

This important occasion marks the completion and success of many years work on the part of citizens of this district. Deep appereciation is felt by the community for the final efforts put forth by Hon. George T. Weingartner, Hon. Barton Richards, and Hon. William McElwee, representing Lawrence County in the state legislature and to Governor Pinchot himself for the favorable interest he has shown in the completion of this project.

Historical Event

The construction of the Pymatuning Dam will make possible an adequate water supply for municipal and industrial purposes throughout the Shenango and Beaver Valleys and will permit the expansion of present industries and the securing of new industries in the future for this community. In addition, it will prevent a recurrance of such floods as were experiendced in this district in 1913, with its attendant loss of millions of dollars in damage to property.

The signing of the bill is the most important historical act that has ever taken place for the benefit of this community. In addition to those from New Castle, who will go to Harrisburg, there will be large delegations from Sharon, Beaver Falls, New Brighton, Rochester, Greenville and other cities and communities along the river.

Members of city council, City Engineers Miller and Hoskins, and representatives of the Chamber of Commerce will meet with Charles Ryder, chief engineer of the Pennsylvania Water and Power Resources Board in a hearing on the establishment of the channel lines of the Shenango and Neshannock in Harrisburg at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, and will remain over until the next day for the signing of the bill.

SCHOOL BOARD VOTES IN FAVOR OF TIME CHANGE

time, it will just mean the boys and girls will have to arise about 5 o'clock to get to school on time.

"It seems as if the board each year has to sanction an unpleasant condition someone else has made, and I can't see why it's always the school board's duty to decide. If we act in favor of the fast time this year it only means that it'll be back at our doors next year and the next. I don't know if there's any thing in my 41 years of residence in the city that has so wrought up the people as this so-called "daylight saving" time. It's a nuisance to families where men are working and children are attending school."

After expressing at length his principal objections to the change, Mr. Hyde declared that in his opinion the matter might drop out of sight for all time if the board would set down hard against any change tonight.

Here Mr. Hazen asked Mr. Hyde if it would not help out things if the Seventh ward schools were left on the old time even though the rest changed theirs. Mr. Hyde answered that it would help, but said it would make it just as bad for students of the district who attend Senior high. Mr. Hyde again reminded the board that nothing whatever operates on fast time in Mahoningtown.

McIlvenny Speaks

J. H. McIlvenny, who joined Mr. Hyde in his opposition to the change, then told the board that Mr. Hazen's suggestion of running the Seventh ward buildings on the old schedule would help immensely. But he insisted that to place the other buildings on fast time would be an injustice to the other pupils.

President Dan Woolcock, who had listened attentively to Mr. Hyde and Mr. McIlvenny, then told the board that only about a week ago he had had Dr. Green sound out in the junior high schools the attitude of the pupils' parents toward daylight time. Out of 4,000 inquiries, the anti-daylight time forces had a majority of a 13 over those in favor of it. Mr. Woolcock remarked that such goes to show that the matter is a close 50-50 proposition.

A. W. Bauman asserted that in his belief it never hurt a boy or girl to get up a little earlier in the morning—he thought it was a good trait to encourage.

Mr. Hazen, in support of his stand, declared that in his opinion the school board isn't taking any lead part in changing the time. He said that it's apparent that daylight time has been set and that there's no question but what the majority are using fast time. He observed that the board was merely following along.

Mrs. John E. Elliott said if the schools stay on slow time the stores no doubt would suffer. Teachers could not get downtown to buy at that late hour, and here she cited the buying power of the instructors.

Then after more talk for and against the move, Mr. Duff asked the directors not to prolong discussion farther. He said he was ready to vote and believed every other member was.

In his opinion to operate the Mahoningtown buildings on a different time would only make for confusion. Here Mr. McIlvenny agreed with him, stating that the two times would cause no end of trouble and probably would, just as Mr. Duff had stated, result in about four or five residents' petitions being presented to the board in about five days.

Then President Woolcock dropped the gavel lightly as he instructed the clerk to take the vote. A. W. Bauman, Mrs. John Elliott, W. W. Duff, Dr. W. D. Cleland, Roy W. Hazen and President Woolcock voted "yes" and Mr. Hyde and Mr. McIlvenny, "no".

gan running when shaken by Gerhson.

To Question Suitor

This new discovery will be one of the points on which M. E. Garrison, admirer of the dead girl, is to be questioned, detectives said. Garrison, detained yesterday by police, said he had accompanied Miss Bradshaw to a theater Saturday evening and had left her at the door of her home about midnight.

Police said they had not yet determined whether the watch indicated the girl had been slain at 9:43 Saturday night or twelve hours later.

The coroner's report indicated that the girl's body was still warm when found shortly afternoon Sunday.

After hours of questioning, Garrison was suddenly confronted with the body of Miss Bradshaw. He spoke endearing names and kissed the girl's forehead repeatedly. Several times he asked detectives that he be permitted to attend the girl's funeral.

Garrison then broke down and wept and was led from the room.

A coroner's investigation of the body revealed that she had been stabbed 17 times.

STAR GAZING DETERMINING THE MOON'S DISTANCE FROM THE EARTH

By Arthur DeV. Carpenter

One way astronomers have of finding the moon's distance from the earth, and also its parallax (or displacement) due to viewing the moon by two observers at the same moment, but far removed from each other, is for one astronomer to make observations or moon with a telescope and refined measuring instruments, say at Greenwich observatory, England, and the other from Cape of Good Hope, South Africa. The observers then check up on the moon's position with great care: just how far apart the two observatories are is known: they know their distance or radius from the earth's center. Given these facts, the mathematical computation reveals the moon's distance.

SUNDAY BASEBALL BILL IS DEFEATED IN HOUSE VOTING

probably would not be sufficient time for the Senate to act on the controversial matter before a sine die adjournment.

What was probably the last forceful effort of the present session to amend the Blue Laws of 1794 to permit Sunday baseball drew crowds to the House and took up a great part of its evening session with debate on the measure.

Familiar Arguments

The arguments for and against Sunday baseball, become familiar through repetition, held the House for a major part of the evening before the bill was voted down.

With Sunday baseball out of its way, the lower chamber moved ahead with its calendar, passing finally the Heffran Bill removing the age limit for persons employed by the commonwealth; the Goehrig Bill authorizing minors of 18 years or more to become members of life insurance companies; the McGregor Bill to eliminate names of presidential electors from the ballot and several minor measures before adjourning.

McClure Bill Up

Meantime, the Senate acted finally upon 34 measures, approving 16 on second reading so they will come up for passage today. The Senate will act on its calendar today, then recess until this evening to permit committee meetings.

First evidence of the cost of the present protracted session appeared in the upper House with a bill by Senator McLure, Delaware, carrying an extra appropriation of $55,000 to pay expenses of legislative attaches on a per diem basis and extra mileage of legislators.

The Senate today is scheduled to act finally on the McClure Bill reapportioning the state to provide for 34 congressmen in place of 36.

ECONOMIC LEADERS OF EUROPE URGE DEBT CANCELLATION

rector of the Bank of England urged "free buying" between nations, another way of deposing of American tariffs. Next, Sir Alan boldly suggested cancellation of war debts as a measure certain to hasten the day of recovery.

Lastly J. S. Edstrom, managing director of Sweden's great electrical trust, blamed the concentration of capital in the United States as one of the causes of world depression. He also condemned government aid for industry or agriculture, a polite method of condemning American farm policies.

While the three great economists touched upon verboten subjects, they were lavish in their praise of American ingenuity, genius and activity. All three expressed the world's amazement at the speed with which the United States assumed a commanding position among the industrial powers of the world.

Start Discussions

Their addresses featured the morning session of the Congress.

Beginning this afternoon, the International Chamber started round table discussions of world economics. High on this program were conferences on the Russian question and the silver issue, each calculated to stir up fresh controversy.

The business men of America, France and England undoubtedly will join in comdemning Russian "dumping" practices, but it appeared the German and Italian delegation would defend Russian methods. Due no doubt to the negotiation of recent contracts with the soviet republic.

The Chinese delegation meanwhile will ask the congress to recommend or even arrange a world conference to negotiate an agreement for stabilizing the silver market. The Chinese pointed out that the decline in silver prices had ruined the Chinese, Indian and other markets, where silver standards are maintained.

FEDERAL AGENT HERE TO INSPECT POSTOFFICE SITES

to get the New Castle project under way immediately, so eager in fact that a trip which was planned for me into Ohio cities was set aside long enough to permit me to make an inspection here.

"With a representative of the post office department I intend to make thorough investigations of each site which local property owners have proposed as possible sites. A Pittsburgh man will likely come today, and if not today he'll be here tomorrow."

A meeting of all property owners who have sites to offer will be held in the post office on Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, daylight time, Mr. Blanton announced. He decided upon the joint session after a brief study of the situation here.

Conferences Here

Agent Blanton said the local inspection would probably consume two or three days, the greater part of the time being taken up with the conferences with site owners. Conferences are also planned with real estate men.

After completing his work here, Mr. Blanton will leave for the Ohio trip that has been delayed. He is scheduled to inspect post office or court house sites in Columbus, Portsmouth, Cincinnati and other larger cities.

No information as to when the Ellwood City, Grove City and other post office site inspections would be made could be obtained. Mr. Blanton said other site agents would be detailed to make surveys there.

The word "acre," taken from the Anglo-Saxon "aeger," originally meant a field of any size.

Monday evening marked another social success on the club calendar when members of the New Castle Field Club assembled at the club house for another of their stag parties. Albert Street and William Nunn were hosts on this occasion, and were responsible for the splendid time each guest had.

Prize winners for cards were J. S. Gillum, R. M. Garland and Charles Burckart. At the close of the card contest, a game of indoor golf was in vogue as a side issue. Lunch was served at the conclusion of the entertainment.

The next party for the men will be in the form of a stag dinner and will be held on Wednesday, May 20. The menu will be served at 7 o'clock for the benefit of the Wednesday afternoon golfers. Following dinner, cards and miniature golf will be featured. Further announcement regarding this event will be made later.

DIVORCE BY WHOLESALE

UNDER the new divorce laws of Nevada, Reno will serve, like Charles of Sweden, to "point a moral and adorn a tale." The reduction of the legal period of residence to six weeks has brought unexampled quantities of grist to the judicial mill. One can almost hear the tinkle of the cash register as the fees roll in. The judicial technique has been developed to a high point. The judges expect to try at least six cases an hour today, and perhaps for another week. Never before were marital bonds so rapidly sundered. And Reno rejoices in this "new prosperity."

To most persons the city will seem to have attained an evil preeminence beside which its previous reputation is well-nigh spotless. Nevada has not been the only state where divorce is easy—too easy—to secure. The nation as a whole must bear its share of the scandal. Reno represents moral disintegration carried to the nth degree.

That is not to say that divorce is never justified. But until recent years it was the last rather than the first resort of the unhappily married. It requires only a superficial knowledge of the proceedings in divorce cases to realize what is being done to the whole fabric of society by the frivolous and irresponsible abuse of law to repudiate obligations of the most solemn sort. Whether one regards matrimony as a sacrament or a contract, the harm to the individual and the community alike is glaringly apparent.

The Nevada law is only a symptom; the root of the disease goes much deeper. Hasty marriages are no doubt in part its germ. Fewer and fewer persons seem to believe that the honorable estate "is not by any to be entered into unadvisedly or lightly, but reverently, discreetly, advisedly and in the fear of God." Many other causes than death or moral dereliction suffice to part husband and wife. The ties of family are not strong enough. No one thinks of the effect upon the children when their parents are thus driven far apart.

Yet if the family is indeed the unit of society, as was once all but universally believed, it is plain that the destruction of this binding force must lead to intolerable evils.

Six divorce cases tried in an hour! How can there be in such circumstances any proper scrutiny of the facts? How can there be any safeguard against collusion? Justice is mocked and honor is derided when such things are possible.

The Reno situation is a national menace.

VERSATILE STATISTICS

Statistics, like the Bible in the hands of the devil, can be quoted to one's own purpose. In a world which dances so continuously to the music of statistics, it is interesting to see how often they can be used as musical notes to bring forth a tune according to the player's desire.

It is not faked statistics that matter in this connection. They betray only the ill-informed and the unwary. But it is frequently astonishing how the same set of figures may be so rearranged as to turn conclusions upside down.

A case in point and counterpoint: It is a fad and a fashion today to "prove" that you and your community are taxed higher than the other taxpayer and his city or town.

It is possible for the watchful citizen of one community to take the public revenues of his and other communities, divide them by their respective populations and prove that he and his fellow townsmen are discriminated against in the matter of taxes.

A citizen from another community can finger the same strings and bring forth a new chord. He will take the total incomes of the people of the same cities and towns and their annual public revenues and demonstrate that his community pays the highest taxes. And another statistician may take up the fiddle and, by stressing other notes, such as the whole complex of prices, wages and living costs, play a still different tune.

THE PERSONAL TOUCH

The transition from the general store to the department store and specialty shop period was regretted by those who feared "big business" would destroy the personal relation that had existed between merchant and customer. It is true that as the individual business has grown there has been a change in the relations between the merchant and customer, but it has resulted in no loss to either.

Business in its new complex and greatly magnified form is still conducted on a personal basis. The customer can still buy from a "name," nor a "counter," and the merchant as much today as ever in the past does business with "persons," not with mere "customers." Such relations between customer and merchant make business mutually pleasant for both patron and business man.

The change that has taken place in the personal side of business is that trained and dependable clerks now represent the merchant in the personal relationship. The customer can not always buy direct from the proprietor as in the days of the proprietor-and-errand-boy store. Business has outgrown that. Today the clerk is acquainted with the wants of the individual cusomer and the customer seeks the clerks with whom he is acquainted and in whom he has confidence.

Every business man today realizes that he has valuable assets in those men and women back of the counters who "know" his trade and in whom his customers have confidence. Even banks recognize this factor in business.

What you think of yourself doesn't count until you prove it.

Being mad at the world in general tells on you quicker than a small brother.

The old-fashioned daughter got a shingle at intervals, also—but it was made of wood.

Some husbands buy nice presents for their returning wives, and others behave while their wives are away.

Americanism: Talking about the "dignity of labor"; being determined that your sons shall have white-collar jobs.

Centuries ago people thought the world was perfectly flat, like the jokes written to order for a special number of a comic weekly.

There are five million persons in the United States who cannot read, but many of those who can do not seem to be profiting much by it.

Old Friends Are Old Coats
They're Not Exciting
But They Wear Well

By MARSHALL MASLIN

My hair is gray, but I've never thought I was old—except when I've walked across a college campus and seen youths and maidens who are as young as I used to be. But I must be geting old, as old as my hair has been for nearly twenty years.

You're older than you thought you were, perhaps, when you begin to appreciate your old friends, when you decide that old friends are the best, like old shoes and old coats and other things that make you comfortable.

Some times you see an old fellow walking down the street wearing a coat that looks as old as he is. It has a greenish tint across the back of the shoulders. It's wrinkled to his body, it's almost a part of the man who wears it, as much a part of him as his head or his characteristic walk or the expression about his mouth. . . . Old friends are like that old coat.

Old friends aren't exciting. They have very little that is new to tell you. You've talked everything over with them, again and again. You know all their troubles, they know yours. They have no surprises in their bag of tricks.

Old friends aren't always polite. They say what they think. They give you the devil. They talk about you to your other friends. You're not concealing any of yourself from them ,either. . . . They keep coming around, however, and you miss them if they don't. They are your friends, bound to you in common hope and joy.

Old friends don't demand very much. They go away and don't write to you. You leave town and don't send them any letters. You may not see them for weeks or months at a time. But when they die you miss them deeply and feel as if a part of you had gone to the grave with them. You feel lonelier than you did, as when a tree you have known all your life falls and "lays waste the upper air".

But the old friends come around when there's trouble in the family. He doesn't ask, "Is there anything I can do?" He does the things that need to be done. And you accept his help without thinking about it. You'd do the same, you hope, for him.

New friends, in time, may become old friends, but old friends are the salt in life—the salt you do not notice except it be not there. It doesn't seem to matter if the years come along and you do get a little bit older—if you have old friends who travel the same road you have taken. The young people can't have old friends. Old friends are old coats, old friends are good to have.

THE PUZZLE OF LIFE

Grant me, O Lord, the strength to do
The tasks the morning brings me to
But as I walk from dawn to night
Keeping the distant goal in sight.
Let me not blindly hurry by
The lesser joys which may be nigh.

Things seem important here on earth,
But let me rightly judge their worth,
Perhaps 'twere better not to gain
The ends I struggled to attain
And quit the hills I would ascend
To step aside and play the friend.

Teach me to reckon time by more
Than gold and silver struggled for.
Swiftly the hours go by. The thought
Persists that hasten on I ought.
And yet perhaps the greater deed
May to be serve another's need.

Lord, as I walk Thy people's way
So many duties crowd the day,
So many simple tasks and small
For strength and precious moments call,
I wonder am I wise when I
Some friendly service hurry by?

Lord, make me wise enough to know
The worth-while labors here below:
Are the far goals I hope to gain
Worth all the selfishness and pain,
Or does true greatness really lie
In friendship and the tasks near by?

Do you consider advancing age as a tragedy?

Have you cultivated this thought so thoroughly that you see little in the present or future to interest you?

Your thoughts perhaps revert often to this subject that you cannot think very long on any other subject.

Always that thought of death just around the corner.

You look ahead a few years and picture yourself a helpless invalid

You consider your savings and how little they will do toward supporting you through the years when you are unable to work.

Perhaps your mental picture includes some institution supported by the state.

Why draw such drab pictures?

That others have been crippled or practically helpless does not prove that you are bound to be afflicted in the same way.

Why not get a more chereful outlook on life?

Get joy out of the present—you are not sure of the future.

Joy sotthes the nerves and puts health into your veins.

Anxiety poisons and brings on the very thing you fear, so why worry?

Jim Borland Writes

Our good old friend "Jim" Borland is writing a series of articles for his paper, the Franklin News-Herald about the meeting of the American Newspaper Publishers Association meeting in New York and among other things says the following:

Down in the lobby of the hotel, where he and his wife were stopping, I had a nice hour's visit with Fred L. Rentz, of New Castle. This is the first time I had seen my old friend since I was in New York two years ago, but found him looking exceedingly well and in his usual good spirits. He waxed enthusiastic, as he always does, over the prospect of the wonderful flowers that would be in bloom at his home in a month from now and wanted me to be sure to go over and see them. Two other newspaper men that we knew were stopping at our hotel, E. T. Stevenson, of Titusville, who was accompanied by Mrs. Stevenson, and A. Walter ("Dude") McDowell, of the Sharon Herald. The latter and his older brother, William, printed an amateur paper, a weekly, The Sharon Star, from 1892 to 1898, and, now that the organization is taking in amateurs of a later vintage, I have promised to see that they become members of The Fossils. A welcome visitor, who took dinner with us a couple of times, was George Snider, who has been working on prospects in New York for contracts for artictic calendars for the big Chicago house he represents, for the past three months. He stops at a hotel in Newark. George is looking his best and radiates the same good humor and optimism so characteristic of him. If more of the New York people were built along the same lines, the city would not be enveloped in the deep gloom that now depresses one while there.

Marriages in New York state were the lowest in 1930 in thirty years. This condition is blamed on the depression, business depression of course. Progressive Ruler Of Siam Arouses Interest Of Nation

People Of America Hospitable Toward Royalty As Couple Representing Absolute Monarchy Makes Acquaintance With Democratic People

The very human interest exhibited in the unofficial welcome to the King and Queen of Siam is interpreted by the press as showing a healthy American curiosity in the personality of an absolute monarch and his queen. The effect of modern developments on the affairs of the Orient and the fact that the visiting King seeks the services of American medical skill are both subjects of comment.

"Royal princes, heirs presumptive and apparent, and even dowager Queens are no longer novelties here," says the SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE, "but the reigning monarchs who have preceded King Prajadhipok to these shores could be counted on one hand without checking off the thumb." The Chronicle adds that "now we know Siam is a progressive country governed by an enlightened monarch; everybody is a friend of Siam; it is moved and seconded that publicity for Siam be referred to a committee of the whole."

"Americans, naturally," declares the CHARLESTON (W. VA.) DAILY MAIL, "will hope that the King of Siam is successful in his major quest and that he will be cured of his affliction," and that paper adds: "Although he has the absolute power of life and death over his 11,000,000 or more subjects, his pictures do not give the impression that he is a man who would use this power ruthlessly." Finding enthusiasm among the people of a democracy for a ruler who passed through the city in early morning hours, the MILWAUKEE SENTINEL remarks: "When the American looks, he is conscious, no doubt, of the privilege his American citizenship gives him. Perhaps this is what moves him to get up at odd hours in the morning and stand on a chilly railroad platform; he is proudly exercising his democratic prerogative."

"For the first time," it is pointed out by the SOUTH BEND TRIBUNE, "the United States is host to a reigning Oriental monarch. For the first time a King has established a home in the United States. It is hoped that medical treatment here will be successful."

Referring to the interest of the royal visitors in American fashions, the CHARLESTON (S. C.) NEWS AND COURIER remarks that "everything Her Majesty acquires will certainly be fit for a Queen," and assumes that Queen Rambai Barni "is not to be outdone by any of her sisters of the Occident." As to His Majesty, that paper concludes: "The habiliments of the Honorable Herbert Clark Hoover and the habiliments of His Majesty Prajadhipok look the same unless the son of Chulalongkorn parades himself in gorgeous uniform."

"The royal representatives," thinks the BIRMINGHAM NEWS, "doubtless will be shocked by our Western goings-on before they are through looking us over. Seeing this movie-going, motoring civilization clipping it off at breakneck speed, they'll probably be glad enough to escape the bedlam of Manhattan's elevated and see the dawn come up like thunder from the Eastern seas. Meanwhile, wonderingly they will study us, smiling the while with that inscrutable smile the Asians wear while considering the ways and fashions of Westerners."

Recalling that the King "has revealed to American reporters his intention to grant his people the right to vote for municipal officials as a first step toward developing in Siam a system of representative government," the NEW YORK EVENING POST states: "What his reaction will be to the practical demonstration in city government which New York offers him we do not know, but King Prajadhipok will have good reason to ponder over the advantages of this particular Western institution as compared to those of Siam's present system of royal appointments. The aim of government is to promote the happiness of the greatest number, the King told the American reporters, and, according to reports from Siam, this policy King Prajadhipok follows very faithfully. We doubt if quite so much could be said for the government of New York. Why not have a test which would afford the King an opportunity of going into this political question much further. Let him give us for a year the rule he gives his subjects in Bangkok; let the Siamese capital have a year's trial with Tammany Hall in power. There is one possible drawback for the King in this arrangement—we might not be willing to let him return to his native land at the end of the year."

While emphasizing that "things will seem strange to the visitors," the OAKLAND TRIBUNE suggests that they "will see the broad America which is still young and growing," and that "if they stay long enough and go to the right places, they will find what it is that makes this a great country, and take back with the laughs and bewilderment much that is worth while." The CHATTANOOGA NEWS describes Siam as "a well governed country with a strictly modern ruler," while the JERSEY CITY JOURNAL offers the estimates as to King and country: "Siam, to American eyes, may seem still to have a long way to go before her people enjoy those comforts of life which Americans consider so essential—such as freedom of self-government, and the physical comforts of the machine age—but it is to be remembered that Siam has come forward fast toward the better things in western civilization while clinging faithfully to cherished ideals of the east. The present King of Siam is a master of the art of bringing together the east and the west. Educated in England, ruler over millions of illiterate people, he has had the courage and the vision to re-establish popular rights, to encourage compulsory education, and, in short, to do all those things which, since he was free not to do them if he so desired, stamp him as magnanimous and far-sighted."

"The first treaty which this country ever made in the Orient was made with Siam 98 years ago," recalls the APPLETON POST-CRESCENT. The DAYTON DAILY NEWS, also referring to history, remarks: "Siam is one of the few countries which won the World War. In 1917, about the time the entrance of America into the war made a foregone conclusion of the result, what should the Siamese do but declare war on Germany. This made Siam an ally of its old despoilers in Europe. The war ended and Siam sent an emissary around asking as its reward that other countries make good their altruistic promises. They were ashamed not to do it and now Siam, thanks to the war, has all its 12,000,000 people and all its 200,000 square miles back. So it is a fairly happy king, spite of his cataract, who has come to visit us. As good and true republicans, we are of course tickled to death to have monarchy in our midst. How all the other ladies of the great houses are envying Mrs. Whitelaw Reid her royal guest! Take a good look at the king while you can. He is just about the only absolute monarch, barring perhaps, the president of the United States, that we have left."

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

TWO WITS

Lord Dawson of Penn relates this in the current Atlantic.

A farm laborer in England had been out of work for many months and had been living on the dole. He remarked to his physician one day:

"Doctor, do you know I had an offer of work some days ago which would have given me five shillings more a week than I am getting from the dole, but after giving it thorough refection, I preferred to remain independent."

She had been parked beside a fire hydrant for three hours. As she unlocked the car, and got in, a cop who had been waiting for the culprit to show up, sauntered over, stuck his head in the window and remarked very kindly:

"I've been waiting a long time to see you, young lady. What's your name?"

She smiled her sweetest and as she put her foot on the starter replied:

"It wouldn't do any good if I told you. You look like a nice boy, but my husband is about twice your size and very jealous."

God is Gracious—Thou art a God ready to pardon gracious and merciful, slow to anger and of great kindness.—Nehemiah 9:17.

PRAYER—Help us Lord to exercise these qualities toward our fellow men.

WOMAN

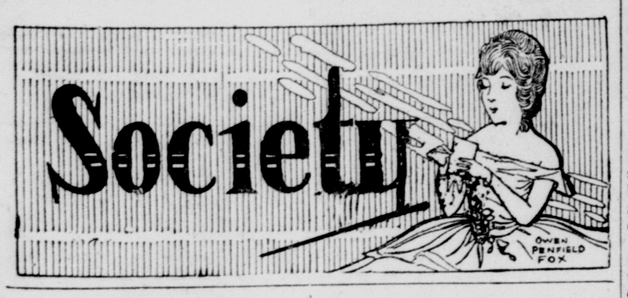

They talk about a woman's sphere
As thought it had a limit;
There's not a place in earth or heaven,
There's not a task to mankind given
There's not a blessing or a woe,
There's not a life or death or birth
That has a feather's weight or worth without a woman in it.

Former Belgian Premier Discusses Depression

George Theunis, Gives Reasons For Depression To International Gathering

Says International Tariff Barriers And Industrial Overproduction To Blame

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, May 5. — The world-wide depression was blamed by George Theunis, former Premier of Belgium, on International tariff barriers, Russian dumping, industrial overproduction, decline in silver prices and overproduction in farm products.

Speaking on "World Economic Conditions" before the International Chamber of Commerce, Theunis reviewed the year's economic developments in which he served as president of the organization. He declared world-wide employment was retarding business recovery, but said the worst part of the depression had passed and that a "wave of contagious optimism" could restore prosperity.

Scores High Wages

He startled his audience by gently criticizing high wage levels, declaring they brought a high cost of living and thrust workers into a vicious circle. He deplored the psychological condition among business men, opposed government intervention in behalf of business, condemned price-fixing schemes, warned about the future of agriculture and declared economic problems would have to be solved by the law of necessity in the end.

"Nobody can say how much longer this universal crisis will last," he declared. "But a comparison of price movements and stocks, indicates that if we have not yet emerged from the depression phase, we have passed through the greater part of it and are about to enter on a more or less prolonged period of quiescence, preparatory to a recovery.

In chiding "high wage levels," Teunis said: "High wages seem to stimulate consumption, and appear therefore favorable to production during the period when they exert a stimulating influence on consuming power, and consequently, on the purchasing power of wage earners. But it seems to me that an increase in consumption, while adding to the products of the producer, also increases capital investments often to a greater extent than the possibilities of further extending consumption capacity.

Stimulating Influence

"So that, in many cases, after a period during which a high level of wages exerts a stimulating influence on industry, the latter again finds itself in a situation very similar to that which preceded the payment of high wages, although meanwhile productive equipment and consumption have reached a level superior to that of the preceding period. In other words, the people may well have formed desirable habits of increased consumption, but the problem of overproduction and unemployment remains the same due to the non-utilization of surplus machinery."

Theunis brought a smile to his audience by declaring "sales on the installment plan" were not affected by the depression "as deeply as might have been expected." He said it seemed the installment buyers "belong to a class of consumers which considers it a point of honor to meet their obligations, partly, of course, to avoid losing the amount already paid in past installments."

In condemning Russian dumping, Theunis said the practice of the Soviets was "to increase suffering and difficulties." He warned however that Russia must be considered from now on as a real influence in international trade.

Volant College Reunion In June

Completion Of Plans For The Memory Book Will Be Made By That Time

Annual reunion of the former students of Volant College, where hundreds of young men and women of past generations attended and received at least part of their education, will be held the last Wednesday in June at the old campus grounds at Volant. As in former years, the occasion will be in the nature of a Home Coming Day for both the former students of Volant College and their families and also many former residents of the place, who make the most of the yearly opportunity to return and renew old acquaintanceships.

Featuring the reunion this year will be the making of final arrangements for the publication of Volant College Memory Book, in which will be recorded the names of every former student and some of their activities both as a student and during their life since attending school. The Memory Book was authorized at the last reunion and is being prepared for publication by the founder and director of Volant College during the years of its existence, Prof. A.A. Galbreath.

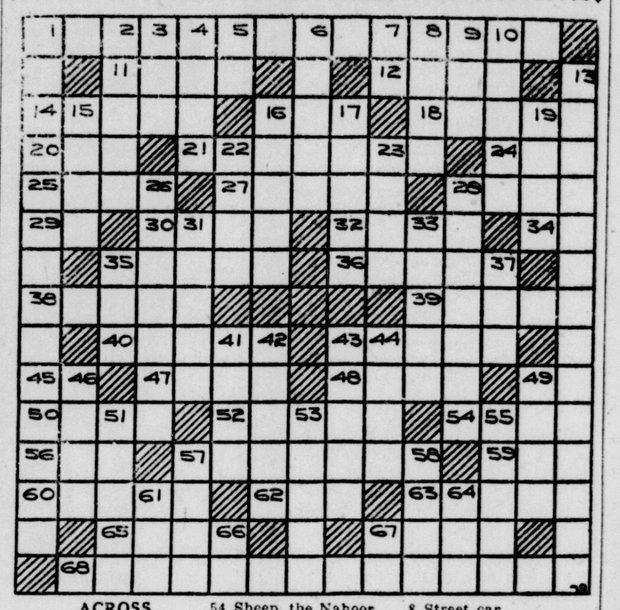

Its publication is now assured and is being sponsored by several of the former students, including Judge L. T. Farr of Lisbon O., and I. H. Perry of East Liverpool, O. It is hoped to have the book ready for distribution at the reunion to be held in 1932. At the coming reunion, there will be the registering of former students and the securing such additional data as may be required. An effort is being made to have every former student still living at the reunion this year. Volant will extend its usual hospitality to all visitors on that day, when many former residents return for the day. Through the courtesy of those in charge of Volant, everything even to the arrangement of the tables in the old College Campus, is taken care of, due to the local civic interest in this annual event.

The officers in charge of the coming reunion and very active in the preparation include Alex McConahy, president, Miss Mary Minnehan, secretary and Mrs. Maude McCracken, treasurer. I. H. Perry is chairman of the Memory Book Committee and Miss Olive Clinefelter, secretary and treasurer of the latter committee.

Volant College was formerly recognized as one of the seats of learning in this district, and its students came from all directions and many of them for a considerable distance. The college was in existence for a quarter of a century and turned out notables in all walks of life.

One of its famous former pupils was Rube Waddell, one of baseball's most effective and also most eccentric twirlers. The old college building was destroyed by fire August 2, 1923 and since that time, weather permitting, the former students and friends gather for their dinner and to reminiscence on the old College campus. The reunion this year will be one of the best in the history of these affairs.

Highway Patrol To Check Lights

State Highway Patrol Ordered To Begin Rigid Drive On Headlights

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, May 5.—Pennsylvania's state highway patrol tonight will begin a state-wide drive against motorists operating with defective and improperly adjusted headlights.

"Hundreds of drivers are operating with headlights and tail lights that are all wrong," said Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Benjamin Eynon. "These drivers are a menace to public safety and the highway patrol has been ordered to enforce the law.

"Beginning Monday night, all available officers will be concentrated in an intensive attack on this hazard. The excuse of burned out bulbs will not be accepted. We mean business."

LOOKING BACK

IN NEW CASTLE

It is safe to say that the number of local people who remember the days when the Pennsylvania Railroad roundhouse was located on Grant street is very small. This was away back in the seventies, approximately sixty years ago.

At that time, the Pennsylvania Railroad in this district was known as the Erie and Pittsburgh, because of the fact that the line in use here then was that on the west side of the Shenango river and operated between Erie and Pittsburgh.

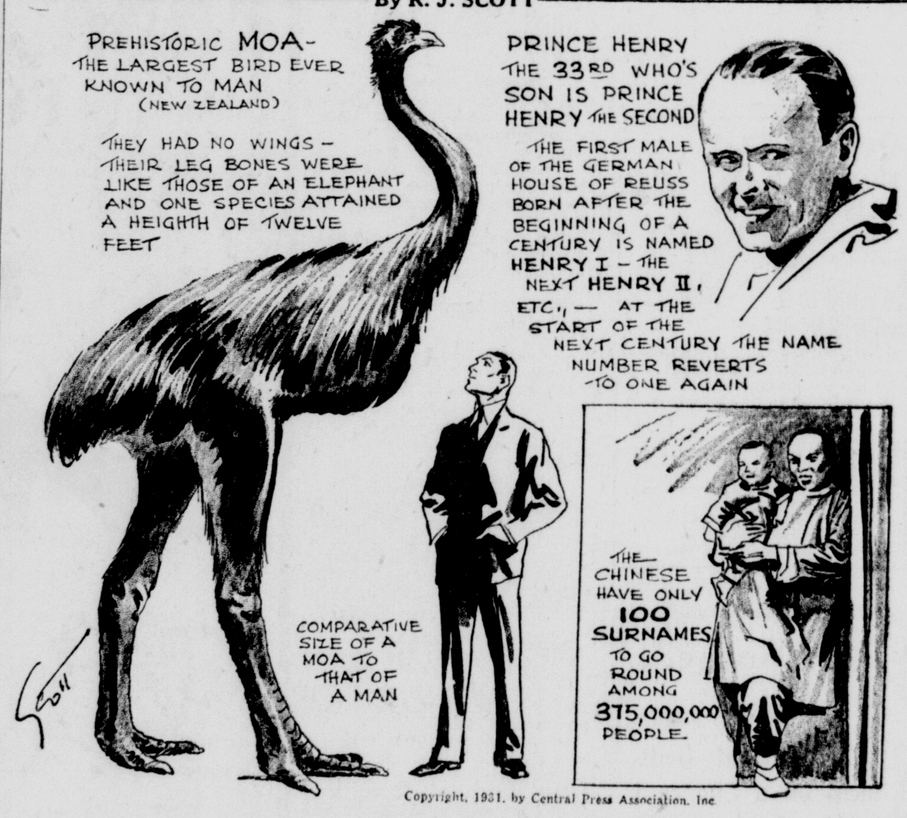

There were two engine or round houses in use at that time, the principal one being located at Grant St. on the present site of the Lawrence Ice and Cold Storage Company plant.

The other engine or round house was located just south of the West Side station of the Pennsylvania Railroad and it was at this latter plant that the sand used in the engines for slippery rails was dried. The sand drying beds were the center of interest for many of the smaller boys of the city in those days.

King Of Siam Gives Hoover Silver Bowl

Rare Silver Bowl Of Ancient Make Presented To President By Prajadhipok

Mrs. Hoover Also Remembered By King For Hospitality

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1931, by International News Service)

NEW YORK, May 5.—Just as one man to another, a King showed his appreciation for the hospitality of an American President with a "little remembrance.

Before leaving Washington on the occasion of his recent visit to President Herbert Hoover, the King of Siam presented the chief executive with a mammoth silver bowl, two feet in diameter, worth a King's ransom.

It was inscribed:

"To Herbert Hoover from Prajadhipok R. (Rex) April 30."

In case you don't know your royal algebra, "Rex" is democratic language for "King."

The phraseology of the inscription was a forethought of the Siamese potentate to overcome any diplomatic restriction of an American president accepting gifts from a visiting monarch, so it was just prajadhipok to Herbert.

Mrs. Hoover Remembered

Nor did the absolute monarch of far-away Siam forget his hostess.

A miniature (photograph) of himself set in a diamond crown was presented to Mrs. Hoover by King Prajadahipok.

Revelation of the gifts by the King of Siam to President and Mrs. Hoover was made today to International News Service by Prince Svasti, father of the beautiful Queen Rambai Barni, consort of the absolute ruler of Siam.

The presentation of the gifts from the King was made to President and Mrs. Hoover at a tea tendered them by their majesties in Washington before returning to Orphir Hall, their headquarters in West Chester county.

The silver bowl may prove to be one of the great art treasurers of the world. For months, the artisans of the royal art school in Bangkok have worked on it.

On a gigantic silver base, the bowl is enhanced with "Niello Work" The art of decorating metal by incising designs and then filling in the lines with a black alloy.

The earliest known impression of "Niello Plate" is in the church of S. Giovanni at Florence, Italy. But Prince Svasti said that he believed the Siamese had used this method even before the Romans.

SUIT AGAINST MRS. EMERY IS GIVEN TO JURY

to the jury was given. The case was given to jury about 10 o'clock.

In concluding the testimony, Mrs. Emery was placed on the stand again to bring out her equities in various real estate holdings, by the defense.

Give Divorce Testimony

Attorney Alvah M. Shumaker then read into the testimony, the proceedings in the McMahon divorce suit which was presented on June 27, 1930 in the Venango County court,

According to the testimony as given the divorce court by Mrs. McMahon, the suit was brought on the grounds of cruel and barbarous treatment, and indignities to the person. In amplifying the latter charge, she testified in the court that Mr. MaMahon had brought home a loathsome disease, which he tried to communicate to her" Mr. Dickey in his remarks to the jury stated.

"We intend to bring out certain points of testimony which we believe have a bearing on this case. You are to look on the testimony and weigh it as to whether the witnesses testified falsely or true, or whether they had an interest in the case.

"They state that Mrs. Emery did by artifice and wile alienate the affections of Mr. McMahon from his wife. They must show that Mrs Emery used means to take away from Mrs. McMahon, his affections.

"On May 13, 1930, Mrs. McMahon left her home and went to Oil City You recall that Sarah McMahon said her father begged her mother to come ba k.

Scores Hendrixes

"If Mrs. Emery had not lived on the corner of Warren avenue and East Washington street, this case would never have been brought. It comes out in the Hendrix testimony that during the latter part of February, Mr. McMahon went to the home of Mrs. Emery and she prepared a lunch and stroked his hair. The lights were on and the blinds were up. Is that a natural thing for them to do?

"Mrs. Hendrix is in the hemstitching business, but it seems that business has been poor during the past year, because she spent the best part of the year snooping on Mrs. Emery. She says she wouldn't call Mrs. Emery names, yet disinterested witnesses have said she did.

"Mr. Hendrix says the real estate business is not so good so he spends his time watching Mrs. Emery. Mrs. Emery says she did not know Mr. McMahon before April 29, and she ought to know.

"One June 27, 1930, Mrs. McMahon started her divorce proceedings The decree has never been granted, but the testimony as taken still stands as a matter of court record in Venango county.

"Mr. Hendrfix tells you he watched her house. Why? Didn't he have trouble with her, and didn't he say, "I'll get even with you if it is the last thing I ever do?"

Mr. Dickey then went on to show how Mr. Hendrix had gotten other people on the east side interested in the case.

"The great saviour of the east side, that's what he is," Mr. Dickey said, which brought forth laughter from the spectators and resulted in the court admonishing that if it occurred again the court room would be cleared.

"They would lead you to believe that the relations between Mrs. Emery and Mr. McMahon were more than friendly, but they don't prove that. These detectives see them sit on the davenport but they don't see any crime committed.

"I wonder if Miss Reitmeyer would be going to the home of Mrs. Emery if she thought she was running around with a married man. I wonder if Mr. and Mrs. Barnes would have invited her to their home if they thought she was that kind of a woman.

Was She Justified?

"The question is, 'Was Mrs. Emery justified in asking Mr. McMahon there when she believed him unmarried?' When she did find out, she was afraid to break off with him for fear of what he might do. Mr. and Mrs. McMahon might have made that up between them.

"Mrs. McMahon could have brought separate action and secured compensation for herself and children but she didn't do that. She would have been better off if she had done so. We beleive we have shown you folks that Mrs. Emery is a woman of fine character in spite of all that has been said against her. You must be shown that Mrs. Emery stole his affections. I don't think he had very much love or affection for her, according to the divorce testimony.

"I want you to say to men like Mr. Hendrix that you can't go out of town and bring women in here and start suits like this that clutter up the home and newspapers with this kind of filth, and let Mrs. Emery go out and live in peace and decency with the respect of good men and women."

Mr. Braham in opening his remarks to the jury, stated that he had heard a lot about alienation of affections, but little about criminal conversation.

"If Mrs. Emery committed an unlawful act before Mrs. McMahon left or even afterward, civil action can be brought and punitive damages sought.

"Every one of us can remember when we were young and the fires of youth surged through our body. But these people were not youths and theirs was a cold-blooded deliberate act. It is argued that there is no testimony to show that Mrs. Emery committed an unlawful act. Yet are we to believe this? These people are human. Are we to understand that they spent night after night together, with the lights out, and did not commit a criminal act?

No Stain on Mrs. McMahon.

"Is there any stain on Mrs. McMahon for what has gone before? With a brave heart she kept her family together and although he treated her meanly she never let the world find out about it. He taunted her with references to his 'rich mamma' and the 'old woman'.

"Was there ever any time in your life that you wished you didn't have the wife that you have, so you could go out and be with another woman? Of course you have, if you are human, but you suppressed your desires and you kept your home intact. The law says this united household is something to be protected.

"She says she didn't know who Mrs. Emery was until in November, 1930. The son and daughter tell you that their father started staying out late at night. Mrs. McMahon didn't know who it was with. Then in March, 1930, he comes home with a loathsome disease.

"Mr. Dickey has spent the greater part of the time talking about whom? Not Mrs. Emery and not Mr. McMahon, but Mr. Hendrix. There is one thing that makes a lot of people disbelieve lawyers. Last week Mr. Hendrix was a witness for Mr. Dickey's crowd and they won their case. This week he is trying to make Mr. Hendrix out a liar. Is this consistent?

"Mr. Dickey, remember, is one of the smartest criminal lawyers of this city, and what does a lawyer do when he has a client that is in hot water? Why, he tries the star witness, talks about him and not the principal in the case.

"I don't hold any brief for J. H. Hendrix, but find out whether he told the truth or not. They magnified that shovel full of dirt until it became a furious windstorm.

"Mr. Fusco didn't say on Saturday that he overheard Mr. Hendrix tell Mrs. Emery he was going to get even with her, but this morning, after he has talked with Mrs. Emery, he does. He is the boy who has been hanging around Mrs. Emery's until 12 or 1 o'clock very often for the past year."

Refers to Time Slips.

Referring to the time slips which showed that on some days Mr. McMahon made double trips, Mr. Braham brought out the fact that after one of these double trips, Mr. McMahon had from 10 o'clock in the morning until 11:40 the next night before he had to report for duty again.

"When something goes wrong, rumors start flying, people start gossiping and then there are telephone calls and letters. It shows something has been going on. Remember the date of November 19, 1930. That is the date that Mrs. McMahon came to New Castle. Now nothing had been going on before that time, they state. What did these people have to tell Mrs. McMahon, if nothing had been going on before this time. We called several people who told of seeing these things.

"On December 15, she admits that she came to my office and was told that she was going to be sued. What do we find when a good woman finds she has done wrong? She drops it right there, but what does Mrs. Emery do? She says, on cross-examination, that McMahon was there between December 20 and 25 After she says she took him to task and he lied to her, she took him back into her home and he stayed all night with her with the lights out.

"They argued, 'Look at the fine company she was in at these parties!' Why, those people presumed that the company she would bring with her would be all right. And then after this party she took him home with her and he spent the rest of the night and all the next.

She Wanted McMahon.

"I say this desire of a man for a woman is a natural one. Apparently she had a weakness for young men. She had this boy hanging around until the middle of the night and she had Mr. McMahon and she wanted him.

"What about this woman, the plaintiff? What is your duty toward her?

"What did Mrs. Emery say? We put her on the stand right away to bring out certain facts which we wanted brought out. The suit was brought on December 2, and she was asked if McMahon had stayed all night with her prior to that time and she said 'positively not'. Then she admitted he had stayed there twice, and then when the detectives were brought onto the stand, she says he was there a half dozen times and then she admits he was there all the times charged.

"First she said he had never been there, then twice, then a half-dozen times and then on every occasion charged. If she needed a watchman there on these nights charged, what about the other nights when he wasn't there?

"It's a mighty good thing to have someone blow the lid off these things once in a while and let the public know they can't do these things and not pay the piper.

"They say this divorce case could have been amended. It will be amended on the grounds it should be.

"What about our duty to society? Why award punitive damages? To act as an example to others that they shall not do these things. What is going to be the proper verdict? Should you say 'Goodbye and good luck. Go out and do it again?' What's our duty to this woman?

"She wanted David M. McMahon I say give him to her, give him to her, if that is what she wants, but compensate his wife so she can take care of her children and do the right thing by them."

The court then announced a recess until Tuesday morning, when the charge of the jury would be given and again admonished all jurors in the case to refrain from discussing the case wtih anyone or permitting anyone to discuss it with them.

Claims Of Bank Being Contested

Case Of Peoples National Bank Against J. Clyde Gilfillan On Trial

The case of the Peoples National Bank of Ellwood City against Attorney J. Clyde Gilfillan was taken up for trial before Judge Hildebrand this morning. During 1927-28 Gilfillan had the contract for the erection of the George Washington Junior high school.

He awarded the contract for plastering the building to C. C. and James Ross of Ellwood City. The Ross Brothers needed financial assistance in order to meet their payrolls, and arranged credit with the Peoples National bank of Ellwood City, under which money for their payrolls was advanced on orders of Gilfillan.

The Ross Brothers purchased their material supplies from the J. Clyde Gilfillan Lumber Company. Some ten payments were made by the bank to Ross Brothers under this arrangement, but there were four payments at the last amounting to something like $1200 each which the bank advanced, but for which they were not re-imbursed. Gilfillan refuses to assume responsibility for these payments on the grounds that the Ross Brothers fell down on their contract and were unable to complete it, much to his financial disadvantage. There are many legal and technical points in the case bearing on the responsibility for the contested claims.

Registration For Girl Scout Regional Training Breaks Previous Records

Never Before In History Have So Many Scout Executives Signed Up For Training

Training Period At Camp Dick Victor Precedes Big Regional Convention

On Friday of this week, when Girl Scout leaders and councillors from Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and District of Columbia arrive at Dick Victor's camp, near Ellwood City, a new record in attendance will have been set.

Never before in the history of the Girl Scout Region 3 have as many executives signed up for the three day annual training course which precedes each annual regional convention, as have this year, according to Miss Nance Pugh, New Castle director, who has been handling the registrations for both the camp training and the convention which will follow.

Will Be 100 At Least

Registrations are coming in daily by the score and it is believed that at least 100 members of Leaders' Associations and Scout Councils from every part of the great region will be on deck for the opening ceremonies at the Dick Victor camp Friday evening.

Last year the training and convention were held at Philadelphia, Pa., and the registration for camp was nowhere near this year's number.

The real training at Camp Victor will be commenced Saturday morning, May 9, and will continue on through Sunday evening, May 10. An elaborate program of activities have been planned. Executives in charge are the pick of the region and are well qualified to instruct in every phase of Girl Scout work.

An active part in the training activities will be taken by New Castle's own Girl Scout council, which consists of Miss Elizabeth Reis, Miss Martha Bigley, Miss Helen R. Wilson, Mrs. F. E. Sowersby, Miss Elsa Ashmore, Mrs. C. R. Balph, Mrs. Herbert Christman, Miss Florence Davis, Mrs. Howard Gregg, Mrs. W. H. Hanger, Mrs. Henry Rappold, Mrs. Ray Robinson and Miss Alice Sterling.

Complete Program

The local council has been working diligently with the many plans and details connected with such an undertaking, and have arranged a program of activities which will undoubtedly surpass any previous regional event. Five complete and different courses will be presented during the three day camp training period, and all those planning to attend have indicated the courses desired.

Miss Adelaide Werner, the regional director, is in charge of the "general" course. This will include all phases of Tenderfoot and Second class work, discussions, troop planning, patrol activities and the Court of Honor. (The Court of Honor really runs the troop. It is representative of the girls, with the leaders.)

Miss Jeanne Christy, the assistant regional director, will supervise the "tramping and trailing" course which will include out-door cooking, fire building, games, handcrafts of varied sorts preparations for hikes and out-door activities of all types. A large number will be taking this instruction and the grounds of Camp Victor are ideal for such projects.

"Troop progress" will be taught by Miss Ray Mitchell, who is the director of the Kenova region, which includes all of Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia. An advance course of First Class work will be given and also a review of the past work.

To Instruct Groups

Miss Hope Swengel, assisted by Miss Elizabeth Clark, will instruct a group of leaders and councillors in "special activities," giving emphasis on special parts of the program, such as handcrafts, nature, story telling, etc. Miss Clark, who is coming from England, has won fame over the world as a story teller of great ability. She will stay in New Castle for the convention following training.

A "Brownie course" will be in charge of Miss Pauline Savage. This is a training course for children under 10 years of age and they will be taught songs, games and handcrafts.

There will be time in all the courses for individual and various troop problems. New Songs and games will be taught the entire congregation.

Three days of training practically always preceded the annual regional convention, according to the local director, but the same people who attend the training period very often do not stay for the convention. After the training, most of them will leave for their homes, and an almost entirely new crowd will arrive for the convention.

The convention will open formally at The Castleton at 9 o'clock Monday morning, May 11. Sessions for three days will be held at The Castleton, at the New Castle Field club and the final session will take place at Sharon, Pa.

May Repair Pool On South Side

Just what will become of the Big Run swimming dam constructed last summer by a number of kiddies of the South Side is not known as yet. The South Side Board of Trade is planning to look into the matter and may back a project whereby the pool will be bettered, an official of the South Side organization stated today.

The water at the present is low. If the pool is to be cleaned and repaired the present is the best time due to the fact that the water is low. If the South Side organization and city council object to arranging the pool for the summer months, the boys will probably fix the pool for the swimming season.

New Castle Firm Given Decision

Interstate Commerce Commission Rules In Favor Of New Castle Lime & Stone Co.

(Special To The News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 5.—The interstate commerce commission has ruled in favor of the New Castle Lime & Stone Company against the Aliquippa & Southern Railroad and has found that the railroad has been charging unreasonable and unduly prejudicial freight rates on limestone.

The decision of the commission had its inception in the complaint of the New Castle company that the railroad was charging unreasonable, unduly prejudicial and preferential rates on limestone from Shaw Junction, Pa., to certain destinations in New York, Pennsylvania, Maryland and West Virginia. The limestone was in carload lots.

In handing down its decision the commission found the rates charged the New Castle Lime & Stone Company to be "unreasonable and unduly prejudicial and preferential" and ordered the establishment of reasonable rates as well as reparation to the New Castle company by the railroad on the sums already collected under the unfair rates.

Make Inspection Of R. F. D. Boxes

Post Office Officials Continuing Annual Checkup On Routes

Officials at the local post office were busily engaged today making the annual inspection of the nine rural mail routes in Lawrence county which carriers from the office here serve. They began making the rounds a day or so ago.

Postmaster Edwin Crawford was to accompany the R. D. 3 carrier, while Superintendent of Mails Frank M. Wilson was to cover R. D. 6 today. Routes 1, 9, 7 and 4 were recently inspected by Assistant Postmaster J. G. Leslie; Peter F. Stevenson, foreman of carriers, and others. Routes 2, 5 and 8 will be covered later.

Special attention is being paid to the condition of the individual boxes, the paint on them and the legibility of the names printed thereon under the regulations of the Post Office Department.

Only recently Postmaster Crawford was instructed by Washington offices to inform headquarters of any refusal on the part of patrons to co-operate with him in the matter of maintaining the appearance of the letter depositors.

The Record of Electric Power and Light Preferred Stocks

Bonbright and Company's analysis of the dividend records of practically every electric power and light company with gross earnings of $1,500,000 or more and every holding company with consolidated gross earning of $10,000,000 or more, the combined capitalization of which represents more than 90% of the total capitalization of such companies in the United States, shows that:

1. Current cash dividends are being paid on all but one of the preferred stocks included in this analysis. In this single case only is there an accumulation of unpaid dividends.
2. In twelve cases dividends have been deferred but subsequently have been paid off in stock or cash.
3. In all other cases (192) the preferred stocks have unbroken dividend records.

(Pennsylvania Power Company is among those with unbroken dividend records.)

Bonbright and Company feels justified in believing that this remarkable record definitely establishes the investment position of the preferred stocks of large electric power and light companies.

Committee Plans Open Hearing On Fair Rate Bills

Senate Committee Will Allow Opponents And Supporters To Present Views

HOPE TO LESSEN MUCH CRITICISM

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, May 5.—Before taking action of any kind, the senate judiciary general committee has announced its intention of allowing opponents and supporters of the Pinchot fair rate bills to register their opinions in public hearings. Senator William H. Earnest, chairman of the committee, announced that those who favor the bills may appear for them in public hearings tomorrow. Those who oppose will be given an opportunity to be heard next Monday.

The course which the committee will adopt is aimed to lessen the criticism which followed the course of the bills in the house where every effort to delay action on them to hold public hearings was blocked by the Pinchot majority.

So that the Pinchot program may, for the time, be given clear sailing in the floor of the senate the McClure bill to provide for a peoples counsel to present complaints before the public commission last night was sent back to the judiciary general committee. The bill is one of a series backed by members of that committee and which was drawn up as a result of the hearings held during the investigation of the commission. The senate intends to give the Pinchot bills an opportunity for a fight in the open and then back them or those drafted by its own committee.

Butler Junction Slayer Is Held

State Police Will Question Louis Veschi, In Slaying Of Wife

MAN CONFESSES TO FIRING GUN

(International News Service)

BUTLER, Pa., May 5.—Louis Veschi, 51, of Butler Junction, near Freeport, was held by state police today at the barracks here for further questioning in connection with the fatal shooting of his wife, Santi Veschi, 45, at their home yesterday.

Police said the shooting climaxed a series of domestic difficulties of long standing. Veschi shot his wife in the basement of their home while the woman was busy with the family washing. The husband shot her through the breast after she struck him, police reported.

State police were summoned by neighbors and took Veschi into custody. The woman died before a physician could be summoned.

Three children, Jerry, 21; Yolanda, 18; and Pauline, 16; were absent from home at the time of the shooting. The two girls were at school and the son returned a few minutes after the tragedy had occurred.

Slayer Confesses.

Veschi told Trooper Edward C. Bergan, of the Leechburg sub-station, that he procured the revolver from its hiding place under a wooden platform in the basement and fired point-blank at his wife. Mrs. Veschi ran from the basement to the Freeport road where she fell dead.

The Veschi family had resided in Freeport and Butler Junction for the past 17 years and wa. well-known in the vicinity. Jerry, the son, said that his father's mental balance was affected by an illness of four years' duration from which he had recently recovered.

Facts On Cost Of Hospital Service

Hospital service for patients of moderate means is a subject whose problems have been in the foreground of consideration for many years. "The Committee on the Cost of Medical Care" organized at the suggestion of President Hoover, has been working since February, 1928, under the general chairmanship of Doctor Ray Lyman Wilbur. The 10th of its serial reports have appeared. Their work will not be completed before 1933. The patient of moderate means is the special consideration in Publication No. 4,—a condensed summary of 105 printed pages.

Jameson Memorial Hospital is not only sensitive to the problem of the needs of the patient of moderate means, but it is contributing handsomely to its solution. Consider the facts: $6.62 per day in 1930, for all private room major surgery; $4.64 per day for semi-private room (2 bed) major surgery; $3.64 for ward (3 and 4 bed) major surgery. The semi private and ward major surgery service was given well below average daily cost. To be sure, any patient is interested chiefly in the whole expense of sickness—hospital, special nursing, doctors fees and loss of earnings. Too frequently sentiment or pride motivates purchase of hospital luxuries not essential to recovery from illness. The result is unnecessarily large hospital expense and too long deferred payment of the doctor.

Jamson Memorial Hospital is actively contributing to care of the patient of moderate means.

Golfers Protect Sparrow's Nest

Little Ground Sparrow Builds Home Alongside Fairway On Municipal Course

Just off the fairway, on the way to hole 15 on the municipal course, a little ground sparrow is trying to hatch out a setting of eggs under extreme difficulty, and New Castle golfers who have discovered the nest are trying to protect the mother bird and her little home.

How it has existed intact so far, is a mystery, as the spot chosen is in a patch of oats, which was planted back of the city home. Many balls were driven into the high grass and were lost, so recently it was mowed and now the nest stands exposed. Strangely enough, no one tramped on the nest hunting their lost golf balls, and golfers now are trying to avoid the spot so as not to molest the little bird and her precious home.

There are three little speckled eggs in the nest which will probably be hatched out soon now.

Bunny Has Ride In Dog's Mouth

A three-day-old bunny, living on John McMillan's farm at Flat Rock, thinks this quite the strange and exciting world. Although he hasn't been here very long, he can boast of an experience as breath-taking as many bunnies have in a life time. And he lives to tell the tale.

This certain bunny, with five little brothers and sisters and their loving mother, were enjoying life in a big way the other day in their nest, which was located in a field near the McMillan home. Nothing was marring their happiness, but then, even mother rabbits can't foresee everything, and she had forgotten about Lassie, the McMillan police dog.

Lassie, while romping over the field, came upon the bunny nest. She did what any self-respecting dog would do in such a predicament. She grabbed one of the bunnies in her mouth and gleefully ran home with him.

Mr. McMillan heard a queer squeaking sound and went out in the yard, finding Lassie tossing the bunny around playfully. Bunny was rescued and returned to his nest safe, sound and quite sophisticated. He will have a great tale to tell his grandchildren if his luck continues to be so excellent.

Board To Remedy Nuisance Caused By Flying Paper

Careless Acts Of Senior High Students Bring Residents' Complaints

Superintendent of Schools Green, with Mrs. John E. Elliott, Roy W. Hazen and A. W. Bauman were to meet today to discuss ways and means whereby a nuisance caused by Senior high school pupils and as a result of which residents living near the school have filed complaint to the board of education, might be regulated.

Lunch wrappers and other papers are carelessly discarded about the school grounds day after day, the residents' report said. They asked for the elimination of the condition through Mrs. Elliott.

The recommendations of the school committee will be presented at the next regular meeting of the board in a week or so.

How to End RHEUMATISM
New Medicine Drives Rheumatic Poisons From Joints and Muscles

EASES PAIN FIRST DAY

Poisons settling in the joints and muscles cause rheumatism. You cannot get rid of rheumatic agony till every trace of these dangerous poisons is driven out of your system. That's why external remedies and pain deadening drugs only give temporary relief.

What you need is RU-MA, the new medicine now sold by all druggists; that acts directly on the liver, kidneys and blood, and helps expel through the natural channels of elimination the dangerous poisons that cause rheumatic misery.

No long waiting for your suffering to stop. RU-MA eases pain the first day and is the one rheumatism remedy guaranteed to free muscles and joints from all painful stiffness, swelling and lameness, or nothing to pay.

Eckerd's, New Castle Drug Co. has so much confidence in RU-MA that they want every rheumatic in town to try it and guarantee money-back if it does not end rheumatism.

City-Wide Celebration Planned On Music Week

Westminster Director, Judge Of Chorus Competition At Celebration

Miss Gladys Rich Plans Interesting Program For Music Week Fete

On Thursday evening, May 14 the vocal music department of the elementary and junior high schools of New Castle will hold a Music Week celebration in the Benjamin Franklin junior high school. A chorus from each of the elementary schools will take part in the song-singing competition, and judges have been appointed to select the best primary and the best intermediate chorus appearing on the program.

The judges will be Allan B. Davis, director of music at Westminster college, New Wilmington; Robert Duff, supervisor of music of Union township public schools, and David Reese, supervisor of music of Sharon public schools.

The junior high schools will not compete, but they will take part in the program. Special features will be a boys' glee club from the George Washington junior high school under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Owens and a massed chorus of over 200 voices under the direction of Miss Gladys Rich, supervisor of vocal music in the New Castle public schools. This chorus is composed of students from the Benjamin Franklin junior high school, the George Washington junior high school and students from the seventh and eighth grades of the Mahoning school.

On this occasion the results of the original song writing contest being conducted in the schools at the present time, will be announced. The subjects chosen for this contest are the masterpieces with which the children have become familiar thru picture study lessons conducted in their art classes. Miss Emilie H. Salomon, director of art, has provided the music teachers with a copy of the pictures about which the children of the different grades have written a little verse of poetry and set it to music.

The members of the Music club will act as judges in selecting the best song written in each grade as well as the best song written for each picture.

All music lovers of New Castle are cordially invited to be present on this occasion. If you are interested in a demonstration of the vocal music work of your schools come to the Benjamin Franklin junior high school on Thursday evening May 14.

Premature Adulthood Explained

Ductless Glands Responsible For Phenomenal Boy

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

There is a six-year-old boy in northern Ohio who is normal in height and weight for his years. He weighs 84 pounds and is three and one-half feet tall. But he has a heavy beard, speaks in a deep bass voice, and smokes large heavy cigars.

You might think this was just an amusing curiosity. But you wouldn't if you happened to be the boy's parents. It is difficult to get him into school: the presence of a bearded basso cigar smoker in the first grade upsets discipline. Equally does the presence of a six-year-old boy in the university cause objection.

That is one of the things the ductless glands can do. In this case it seems to be the pineal gland, which is found in the skull growing from the upper part of the brain. For a long time anatomists thought the pineal gland was the vestigial remains of the third eye of the lower vertebrates, found in some reptiles and amphibians. But that concept has been to a considerable extent abandoned.

When its secretion is increased as in the case of the Ohio lad, it stimulates to rapid maturation of the individual, bringing on the adult state at a very precocious period.

Like another ductless gland, the thymus, it atrophies as age advances and probably completely disappears after the 30th year. During this process it becomes converted into sand or lime and can be seen as a shadow on an X-ray plate. This shadow is seen in certain patients who have extreme muscular weakness early in life and leads to the conclusion that the early atrophy of the gland is responsible for the muscular changes.

Of all the ductless glands, however, we know the least about the pineal.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

E. J., Kansas City: "Will you tell me whether foods have any effect on psoriasis, especially corn and tomatoes?"

Answer: No set rule or formula can be laid down for all cases of psoriasis. The diet prescription depends upon the general condition of the patient. A frail anemic girl will obviously require a different diet than a robust, full-blooded man. In general the diet should be simple with limitation of nitrogenous articles, especially red meats. Bulkley advises a vegetarian diet. Corn and tomatoes do not have unfavorable effects.

THE PARENT PROBLEM

Expect Noise When Tots Are Playing

Jealousy Is Parents Chief Problem—Dr. Myers

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education
Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

"Dear Mr. Myers: I read everything you write, always, and I am very interested. I have two beautiful sons, 5 and 3. I love them both very much, and want to see them grow up to be gentlemen. The oldest one is a very naughty boy most of the time. My husband is kind and good to both children, but they seem to make us very unhappy most of the time. We have spent a good deal of money on them for medical attention. We bought a lovely home to give them a good chance to live well. We have purchased all kinds of lovely toys to amuse them with, but they are always fighting or breaking things and are noisy. We have no peace in our home when they are awake. If I ask them to do something the answer is always 'no'.

"I am almost broken-hearted because I have devoted all my time to them, and I almost died when they were born. I see other mothers getting so much pleasure from their children. Do you think something is wrong with me or with the children? I am young and want them to grow up with me to enjoy things in a beautiful way, but so far my efforts seem to be all wrong. I would be so grateful for advice from you.

Answer: In the first place, mother you must expect some noise and quarreling. Try to learn not to be disturbed by them. So long as they do not injure each other, let them alone to settle their own quarrels. No better education. In the event one always is the under dog, or either endangers the other's life or limb, step in, merely separating them, assigning each to a separate place for an hour or two by the clock, without attempt to fix the blame or to scold or punish either. When one tattles on the other act as if you were deaf.

Perhaps they have not learned proper care of property. At the moment either deliberately breaks a toy, assign him to sit in a chair for, say, 20 minutes by the clock, but not unless you saw him break it. Merely to take away his toys is, at this age, too slow in effect, as a rule.

Except a very few things in common, see that each child has his own toys and is sole owner. Respect and protect his ownership. Don't duplicate toys, but have, say, a cart for one and a wagon for another. Then they will have a motive to exchange toys and cooperate. Never compel one child to give up his things to the other. Persuade, and when he accedes, praise him liberally. The chances are you have tried to make the older one always give up and that the younger is more often the transgressor.

No doubt jealousy is your chief problem. The older was for two years king of the earth and his baby brother came and stole his crown.

Read a good deal to both; let dad read to one and you to the other often, as the older one should have older matters read and should feel he is considered the older.

Be sure you are patient with the older, listening to his experiences and yarns of fancy, answering all his questions, taking time to dramatize and play with him.

Never compare the children or praise the baby before his brother, and when your friends make a great deal of fuss over the baby see that the older boy then gets some praise.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Two pamphlets by Dr. Myers may be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Garry C. Myers, in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Punishments and Rewards" and "Fear".

COSMO COGITATES.

Cosmo Hamilton, British novelist, doesn't like the modern young man.

He thinks he is at least 50 per cent below the modern young woman, that he's affected with half-wittedism, a vacuous ego, undesire and inability to earn his living, a weakness for being "kept" by man or woman. He thinks he has a tender skin, literally and otherwise and that he's freckled mentally as well as physically.

The reason for this, he says, is that the youngsters come of age during the war, or after it, witnessed the general ineptitude of men of the world thought great; they watched laurel wreaths die; they grew up in a world without heroes, without illusions, without God.

Cosmo has met the wrong youngsters, that's his trouble.

Lawyers Adopt Fast Time At Annual Meeting

Request Judges And County Officials To Get Together On Time Problem

OFFICERS ELECTED FOR ENSUING YEAR

Daylight savings time, officially adopted at a meeting of the Lawrence County Bar Association at a meeting held in the law library at the court house Monday afternoon, went into effect this morning.

In adopting daylight savings time the association passed a resolution asking judges and county officials to confer and reach some agreement as to when court is to be opened and closed and during what hours the court house will be open.

With two kinds of time in force in the city attorneys and patrons of the court house have been confused. Court house officials have been kept busy answering telephone calls.

A resolution was adopted fixing the lawyers annual vacation time from July 6th to September 14th. This does not mean that the attorneys will close up their offices during those dates, but simply that one lawyer cannot take advantage of another in filing suits between the vacation dates. Many of the lawyers are planning to be out of the city for a week or two during the vacation period.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: J. P. Lockhart, president; Homer C. Drake, vice-president; J. Elder Bryan, secretary, Clarence Patterson, treasurer.

Attorney Joseph R. McFate, was admitted to membership in the association.

Will Give Out Seeds Wednesday

Packets Are Prepared For Distribution To Unemployed In Garden Project

New Castle's big garden project for the unemployed will get under way tomorrow when seeds will be distributed to those who have made application at the office of the Lawrence county chapter, American Red Cross.

Gardens have been prepared by those seeking seeds, and only those whose plots have been inspected and have been found ready for planting will receive their seeds at this time.

It is expected that around 400 persons will be in to secure their seeds at this time, as the planting season is now at hand, and practically every variety of vegetable can be safely planted now, with the possible exception of tomato plants, which might yet be damaged by frost.

But seeds which are to be placed in the ground and which will not develop for a week or more can be safely planted now, it is believed by those in charge of the project.

Police Chief Urges Owners To Lock Cars

"Many of the motorists who have been having their cars stolen recently in this city," said Chief of Police C. C. Horner today, "are in a large sense responsible for the theft of their machines."

"They park their cars and go away from them, leaving their keys in the ignition, or leaving them unlocked, or else they leave their doors unlocked.

"If they would take the precaution of locking either their ignition or the doors of their cars, the stolen cars would be at a minimum, as those taking them want them only for joy riding and are taking only those, which it might be said, are all ready for them to jump into and start.

"In many instances, the owner jumps out of the car and rushes away without second thought to the place they desire to do some business and the persons looking for such cars are often right there ready to jump in with the engine all set to go speedily.

"Most of the cars are found and some come back in good shape. In most instances, however the thief taking the car is only concerned in having gasoline to go fifty to a hundred miles and as fast as they can. They don't care about the oil or grease and the result is that many of the machines are returned in bad condition. They are usually bumped up to some extent.

"The motorists could avoid all this by using the precautions that have been placed on their cars for that purpose."

Rossiter, Three Others Receive Jail Sentences

Erie Attorney And Three Companions In "Prisoner Subbing" Sentenced

JUDGE McVICAR DISHES OUT TERMS

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, May 5—Jail terms and fines on all defendants convicted in the famed "prisoner substitution," trial at Erie, and jail terms for all of the defendants who pleaded guilty, were meted out by Judge Nelson McVivar in Federal court on Monday.

Samuel Y. Rossiter, Erie attorney, was sentenced to pay court costs in the case and an additional fine of $2,500 and to serve four months in the Cambria county jail.

Lester Beals, also convicted with Rossiter, was sentenced to serve three months in the Beaver county jail, while Joseph Donovan, third man convicted in the case was sentenced to serve six months in the Allegheny county jail.

Joseph Wagner, alias Patrone, alias Jarvis was given a jail sentence of one month in the Allegheny county jail on the first count of the indictment and was placed on probation on the second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth counts.

Motion Granted

The court granted a motion by Joseph Richardson, attorney for Rossiter, whereby Rossiter's bond of $10,000 was continued to act as a supersedeas pending an appeal to the U. S. Circuit court of Appeals.

Richardson also filed an appeal asking leave to file additional assignments of error within a ten day period. This appeal was granted by the court.

Similar motions were filed by Frank B. Quinn, attorney for Beals and Donovan. These motions were granted by the court.

Sentencing of Samuel Y. Rossiter, Lester Beals, Joseph Donovan and Joseph Warner in Federal Court at Pittsburgh today brought to a close, at least temporarily, one of the most amazing court proceedings in the history of Pennsylvania jurisprudence.

The men, were indicted charged with conspiracy to substitute Warner for Stanley Wells, wealthy alleged Canadian rum-runner, in serving a prison term at the Erie county prison.

Shortly before Rossiter, Beals and Donovan were placed on trial at the March term of Federal court in Erie, Warner surprised court circles at Pittsburgh by entering a plea of guilty to the indictment.

Rossiter, Beals and Donovan were found guilty by a Federal court jury at Erie. Hearings on a new trial motion were held at Pittsburgh and the motion was denied.

New Gas Gusher Is Reported Drilled

Production Of Gas In Tioga County Field Doubled With Blowing In Of Well

(International News Service)

WELLSBORO, Pa., May 5.—Production of natural gas in the newly opened Tioga county field today was doubled with the blowing in of a new 25,000,000 cubic foot gusher on the farm of George Boom, near here, in the leaseholds of the Lycoming Natural Gas Company.

The newest gusher, brought in at 3,008 feet, is the sixth producing well in the local field and was drilled within a few hundred yards of the 25,000,000 cubic foot gusher brought in last week on the L. B. Palmer farm.

The boom well came in last night, after drillers had quit work for a while to permit John B. Tonkin, president of the Lycoming Corporation, to reach here from Pittsburgh to witness the blowing in of the shaft. Tonkin is an official of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, holding company for the Lycoming Natural Gas Corporation. Standard Oil of New Jersey now has sixteen wells drilling in the field which, with the Consolidated Benedum and trees Company, makes its subsidiary one of the largest potential gas companies in the nation.

Officials of the Lycoming Company today stated that surveys for a pipeline from the local field to Syracuse and other central New York state points was nearly completed and that construction of the pipeline was expected to start within a comparatively short time.

The Flower Parade

GARDEN PRIVACY

By DR. KARL F. KELLERMAN

Bureau of Plant Industry

U. S. Department of Agriculture

Increased interest in beautifying the home grounds has brought a greater appreciation of the privacy of the garden. Attention is shifting from the front of the house, with its noise and traffic, to the more restful parts of the grounds.

And this has brought a change in the planning of the house, which, in turn, makes necessary important changes in laying out the grounds. Both for convenience and beauty the arrangement of the grounds should be made to fit the plan of the house horticulturists of the Bureau of Plant Industry point out.

There is a tendency now adays to switch the living room from its conventional place on the street to the rear of the house. With skillful planning, the garage and kitchen are being moved to the front. This gives a more intimate connection between the living rooms of the house and the garden.

The connection between the street and the service rooms of the house, including the basement and the garage, can by this arrangement be made more short and direct. It should be, too, as inconspicuous as possible. Formerly the walk to the service entrance often went around two, or even three, sides of the house, taking up valuable space that might have gone into lawn or garden. It also intruded on the privacy of the garden.

An important service need that must be planned for is fuel—coal or oil. Here is where the house planning and the landscaping should be considered at the same time, as the location of the heating plant will practically determine where the coal bin or the oil tank must be placed.

Engle Ready To Tell His Story Before Probers

Former Youngstown Traction Commissioner Will Take Witness Stand

JUDGE JENKINS ENDS TESTIMONY

Strict Secrecy Surrounds Special Grand Jury Probe In Progress

(International News Service)

YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 5.—Harry Engle, the former traction commissioner, and the main cog in the sensational public utilities and public officials investigation instituted here, today was to take the stand and bare the "inside story" of the relations of the Ohio-Edison company, himself and Ray Thomas, the county prosecutor.

Judge David G. Jenkins, the judge who enjoined the Youngstown Sheet & Tube-Bethlehem Steel merger, testified for 2 hours and 25 minutes before the special grand jury yesterday afternoon and behind "closed doors".

Engle Ready to Talk.

Engle said he would make a clean breast of the entire affair and tell the real story behind the letter which A. C. Blinn, vice president of the Ohio-Edison company, sent to the city council in which he charges the traction commissioner with demanding $150,000 from the company for "services performed".

The jury of 10 men and five women heard a lengthy charge from Judge Alfred Mack of Cincinnati, one of the outside jurists named by Chief Justice Carrington T. Marshall of the state supreme court, to preside over the probe.

Judge Mack instructed the jury to determine whether Prosecutor Thomas had ever attempted to impede the administration of justice in Mahoning county by threats of coercion exercised over the common pleas court bench.

Veil of Secrecy.

Judge George H. Gessner of the common pleas bench was also to take the stand today but as a "private citizen", he said.

The grand jury activities were shrouded in a veil of secrecy. Newspaper men were not admitted or apprised of what had taken place during the lengthy questioning of Judge Jenkins.

White With Red

White and red is almost as popular this season as the famous black and white combination. This ensemble uses the two colors. The scarf is banded in the two tones joined together in saw-toothed design. White kid shoes with red eyelets, white kid hat and gloves and red morocco bag complete the ensemble.

Murder Charge Is Made In Case

Mrs. Theodore Ross Will Be Given Hearing On Thursday Morning

Charged with murder, following the death of Mrs. Viola Conti in the New Castle hospital Monday afternoon, Mrs. Theodora Ross of Home street, who had been arrested several days ago for allegedly performing an illegal operation on the Conti woman, was today lodged in county jail.

Taken before Alderman Hamilton by city police and County Detective Lee, Mrs. Ross pleaded not guilty to the charge. Hamilton arranged a hearing for the woman to be held on Thursday at 10:30 a. m.

The only thing of value is life, and life is time. The real price of anything is the time you spent to get it.

McCULLOCH TELLS HOW TO PLANT HOME GARDEN

For the benefit of many amateur gardeners, who are just starting in to garden during the present emergency, County Farm Agent Harold R. McCulloch has issued a set of instructions which will be of great assistance.

Many individual families have come to him recently, while those in charge of the welfare organizations and corporation officials have asked for this information, so that families who could not afford to buy vegetables may grow their own food during the present emergency.

Only those vegetables are suggested which are fairly certain to give a good return under fair to poor conditions.

If manure is available, it can be applied and turned under. Where lime is needed, it can be broadcast and raked into the soil after it is spaded or plowed. One hundred pounds will be sufficient for 2,500 square feet. To increase the fertility of the garden, apply 100 pounds of a good complete fertilizer broadcast and rake it in.

Brief directions and plans for a small garden of 2,500 feet which should be worth from $50 to $100 to a family are given as follows:

Plant only in long straight row. A garden line will be necessary for this.

Early cabbage, 24 plants, two feet apart, in rows one and a half feet apart. These should be planted at once. Late cabbage two feet apart each way, 48 plants, plant in June.

Tomatoes, 18 plants, 4 feet apart in the rows, plants three feet apart plant in May.

Snap beans, 200 feet of row., one quart of seed, rows 18 inches apart, plant in rows three-fourth of an inch apart, plant in May to July.

Carrots, 100 feet of rows, a quarter of an ounce of seed, rows 18 inches apart, thin plants to three inches, plant in April.

Lettuce, 50 feet, quarter of an ounce of seed, rows 18 inches apart, thin later, plant from April to August.

Onions, 100 feet, two quarts of sets rows 18 inches apart, rows three inches apart, plant in April or later.

Radishes, 100 feet, one ounce seed, rows 18 inches apart, plant in rows, two inches apart, from April to August.

Swiss chard, 50 feet, quarter of an ounce of seed, rows 18 inches apart, plants eight inches apart, sow in April or May.

Beets, 200 feet, two ounces of seed, rows two feet apart, plants quarters of an inch apart, sow in April or May.

Peas, 200 feet, quart of seed, rows two feet apart, plants half inch apart, plant in April or May.

Turnips, 100 feet, half ounce of seed, rows 18 inches apart, plants four inches apart, April to July.

Kohl rabi, 50 feet, quarter of an ounce of seed, rows 18 inches apart, plants 4 inches apart, April to August.

Additional crops for a plot of 50 by 100 feet, 5000 square feet in all.

Sweet corn, 400 feet, two pints of seed, rows about 3 feet apart, plants 10 to 12 inches apart.

Cucumbers, 100 feet, half ounce of seed, rows four to five feet apart, hills one or three feet apart.

Squash, 100 feet, quarter ounce of seed, rows four to six feet apart, same as cucumbers for hills.

Patches Together Myriad Of Wood Pieces To Make Artistic Floor Pedestal

When you realize that one man alone cut out 1,550 separate pieces of the finest wood and patched each together into a beautiful, artistic floor pedestal in the short space of eight working days, you know exactly what type of a job confronted Ralph M. Copper, New Castle R. D. 6, this past winter.

Copper, a carpenter by trade, completed the remarkable piece of woodwork during the winter months, but altogether it didn't consume over eight days of his time.

Not a single nail was relied upon to fasten the pedestal any place, the bits of wood being skillfully glued together in an astonishingly rigid manner.

Woods used in the pedestal are walnut, white gum, mulberry, bird's eye maple and curly maple.

Devotions Close At St. Mary's On Monday Evening

Church Is Filled With Worshippers As Services Are Brought To A Close

St. Mary's Church, North and Beaver streets, was filled with worshippers Monday evening at the closing of the Forty Hours Devotions. The service began with the chanting of the Litany of All Saints by Rev. Fr. R. D. Wilkey, pastor of St. Agatha's Church, Ellwood City and Rev. P. Scholz, St. Margaret's Church, this city.

Father Clifford's Boy Choir gave the responses with Father Clifford presiding at the organ. The procession was headed by the cross bearer and two acolytes followed by fifty-five little girls in white carrying roses. The choir boys sang Pange Lingia in procession. Thirty five altar boys carrying lighted candles and ten torch bearers preceded the priests, who were Rev. Father P. J. McKenna, pastor of St. Mary's church, Rev. Fr. Bajewski, Madonna church, Rev. Fr. S. Ippol St. Lucy's church, Rev. Fr. Capitan, St. Michael's church, who was sub-deacon, Rev. Fr. DeMita, St. Vitus church, who was deacon, Rev. Fr. V. Stancelewski, of Sts. Philip and James, who was celebrant and carried the Monstrance, containing the sacred host and Rev. Fr. Dudley Nee, who was master of ceremonies.

The main altar was a blaze of candles and decorated with flowers and was a scene of beauty. The services were carried out with all the beauty and dignity of the Catholic church.

Rev. Fr. McKenna, pastor of St. Mary's Church, was host to the clergy at a dinner preceding the services in the church.

How to Draw Comics Like Mine—By George McManus

The Creator of "Jiggs" Reveals More of His Methods, with New Light on the Life of a "Big Time" Artist

LESSON No. 7.

By GEORGE McMANUS,
Creator of "Bringing Up Father,"
World Famous Comic Strip.

DETAILS! Paradoxically, they are the bane and the boon of the comic cartoonist. They cause trouble and labor without end, yet it is through them that many humorists achieve their fame and most of their lighter laugh-provocative effects. In years gone by I was sometimes a serious offender in the matter of letting details slip by—details of omission and commission—and each slip brought its lesson through complaints of editors and readers. It is that sort of grief that I'd like to help the struggling artist avoid through pointing out some of the more important DETAILS of cartooning.

One of the common faults of the beginner was exemplified recently by the experience of a well-known illustrator. He never had done any cartooning before, but with confidence in his own ability to draw well he produced a half-dozen strips outlining a new comic idea.

"You're idea is good, but your drawing is terrible," was the verdict of the first editor to whom he showed his comic.

The artist left that editor's office, piqued, of course. Before taking it to another editor, he showed his work to a friend upon whom he could depend for an unbiased opinion.

"I wouldn't say your work was terrible," the friend announced, after looking at the drawings for a few minutes, "any more than I would call hash terrible food. Like hash, your drawing is neither one thing nor another. Part of it is illustration and part cartoon. Decide in what style you are going to draw, then stick to it for all your work."

When the artist had followed out this bit of advice, his work was accepted. Many a young cartoonist has fallen into the same fault—mixing his techniques. One characte. will be drawn in caricature, another in sketch style. Backgrounds and settings may show the same fault. You can't blame an editor for not liking artistic hash.

Details can be troublesome by omission, too. A list of the sins of omission would seem an exaggeration, but would not be, as the editors of any syndicate can testify. The details usually were overlooked through haste, carelessness or a change in plan—something done in the first panel that was not carried through all the panels of the strip.

There can be no question about the cleverness of this technique. Its use requires a good sense of the ridiculous, and often a lot of thought. To me there has always been a big objection to such—well, let's call it cartooning "horse-play."

Here's the problem. In any cartoon strip, whether it be of the humor or continuity type, you have certain central characters and a story of sorts to tell. They comprise the cartoonist's stock in trade, the things he has to offer the public every day. It seems to me that the one way in which to build interest in those characters is to keep them very much in the spotlight, where the audience's eyes must watch them. By-play—humor in the background and setting—is certain to divert attention from your characters and story. It always has seemed to me, therefore, to be illogical to introduce such by-play into comic turned in for publication in which the figures were incomplete, shoes were mismated, articles of furniture moved about rooms like magic, and in which characters became quick-change artists in their apparel.

Don't think that editors are the only ones who catch these errors. Even an editor lets them slip by occasionally—and then there is a flood of mail from readers, who are only too glad to catch you up. So it is necessary for the cartoonist to check his own work carefully before he turns it over to the editor.

But details in drawing aren't all grief, as I've told you before. Many cartoonists turn them to advantage, as illustrated in some of my drawings reproduced on this page.

At least one man has become famous because he changes detail in the same scene from panel to panel. He specializes in "Goofy" statuary, and draws the figures doing acrobatics. It lends a distinctly humorous note to his cartooning.

Another phase of that technique deals with signs, and pictures on the walls. There are half a dozen successful comic artists who use the device of changing the wording of signs, or changing the scenes in pictures. If the same sign or picture appears in six panels, there will be six different versions of it.

This sort of thing is effective for a laugh, certainly; but I wonder if it isn't pretty high-priced humor. If it detracts from the interest in the principal characters, I am convinced that it is too high-priced.

Slapstick by-play is also frequently used. Minor characters are made to do amusing things, often of the custard-pie school of humor.

One comic wins laughs because the main character has a grand disregard for the disposition of his cigar ashes. In this case, the by-play is a part of the character delineation, and the comic would lose by abandoning it.

As a general rule, however, it will be well to keep this rule in mind: KEEP THE SPOTLIGHT ON YOUR CENTRAL CHARACTERS. It does no good to let externals detract from interest in them.

The comic artist who becomes so interested in new characters he may introduce from time to time that he forgets to play up the central figures of his strip, is headed for disaster. All those incidental people you draw into your strip have their place—and an important one—but be sure that they keep it. Don't let them steal the show—until there is such a chorus of acclaim for them that you know your strip needs "reaccenting."

And let me give you this last warning: WATCH THE DETAILS in finishing your work. Careles work always leaves a bad impression. An extra few minutes spent on examining your drawings may save rejection of your work. Detail in drawing is as important as correct punctuation of a sentence in writing.

Movie Thrill Is Tried Unsuccessfully By Boys

Three From Ellwood City In Group, Break Down Door A La-Buck Jones

Are Soon Nabbed By State, County Police; All Held By Probation Officer

"This is how Buck Jones does it!" Joe Fotia, 12, of 119 Hillside avenue, Ellwood City, followed up that remark by kicking against the side of the Elmer Harper home, R. D. 2, Perry township, while his four companions, the Teolis brothers of Ellwood City and the Palumbo brothers of Perry township, looked on.

The scene was described to County Detective Lee, who with State Policeman A. M. Gecelosky rounded up the quintet of movie-struck youngsters Monday morning.

Today the Teolis brothers, James, 13, and Sidney, 14, of 317 Division avenue, Ellwood City, and the Palumbos, Ed 10 and James 14, of R. D. 3, Perry township, are being held by Probation Officer Dunlap for Juvenile court.

Alderman Green before whom the five pleaded guilty to charges of breaking and entering and malicious mischief, fixed the bail at $200 for each.

Belief that the youngsters will be paroled by the probation officer following a hearing into their case, was expressed by Alderman Green.

"It will help to train these boys," Green said. He expressed a belief that arrest and conviction at their age would prove disastrous, but intimated a parole would mean a lesson to the five.

The Harper family reported to the county detective's office that they had left the house Sunday afternoon. When they returned in the evening it was discovered that three packages of a popular brand of chewing tobacco, a quantity of candy, and some paid receipt blanks had been stolen and the door of the home had been found battered down, according to authorities.

Lee and Gecelosky spent Monday morning in searching for the perpetrators of the robbery. Finding one clue, they soon took young Fotia in hand. The boy, authorities say, told them about his Buck Jones and the moving picture hero's hair-raising experiences. The Palumbo and Teolis brothers were found in their respective homes and taken to New Castle.

Confronted by the authorities, the five boys who usually applauded the arrest of the villain on the screen, were shivering with fright. But three of them, Fotia and the Teolis boys of Ellwood City, received the surprise of their lives when they recognized County Detective Lee as their former school instructor in Ellwood City.

Greater Need For '31 Chest Drive

Publicity Committee Adopts Slogan For Campaign Starting May 18

ELLWOOD CITY, May 5.—Give More! The Need is Greater, is the battle cry of the people of Ellwood City in its annual chest fund campaign during the week of May 18, which was set aside by Burgess Judd C. Turner.

This was the slogan selected by the publicity committee at a meeting in the chamber of commerce rooms Monday afternoon. The committee is doing everything possible to eliminate expense in this drive. Other various committees necessary to the drive have been selected and organized and every thing is in readiness to go in full swing.

The goal this year of $27,500 which has been studied by a committee has been cut down as much as possible. The publicity committee has already saved $90 for the community chest by using material for advertising they had at hand.

A report board in the form of a thermometer will be placed on the Central School lawn to designate the progress of the drive. New posters will be used in a place which has given 100 per cent.

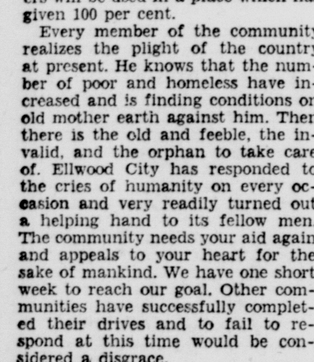

Every member of the community realizes the plight of the country at present. He knows that the number of poor and homeless have increased and is finding conditions on old mother earth against him. Then there is the old and feeble, the invalid, and the orphan to take care of. Ellwood City has responded to the cries of humanity on every occasion and very readily turned out a helping hand to its fellow men. The community needs your aid again and appeals to your heart for the sake of mankind. We have one short week to reach our goal. Other communities have successfully completed their drives and to fail to respond at this time would be considered a disgrace.

The people of the community might appoint a self-denial day for themselves on which they will give to the chest fund any money they would have spent foolishly or for luxuries. A great deal can be accomplished in this manner.

The publicity committee comprised of Charles Dindinger as chairman, William Steele, Frank Patton, Thor W. Bruce, Lewis Nickum, L. L. Edelman, William F. Kegal and Fred Robuck will meet again some time next week to complete plans for the drive.

Elementary Schools To Witness Play

ELLWOOD CITY, May 5.— The members of the elementary schools will be given an opportunity to see the Senior Class play, "The Nut Farm" Wednesday afternoon at the Lincoln auditorium.

The play is some thing in the type of high school plays here and the public will be given an opportunity to see a real movie scenario on the stage, all the stars, and the director. The play is a clever comedy in three acts with some appealing love scenes woven in. The play deals with a self-conceited woman who is convinced by a swindler that she is a born actor and henceforth proceeds to buy producers lot to star herself. Watching her plight and the efforts of the children to dissuade her is exceedingly humorous.

The play will also be presented to the public on Thursday and Friday evenings.

Sam Bruce Bows To Henry Firpo

Fighters Have Fans Cheering From Start To Finish

JIMMY THOMAS WINS FROM PETE MAZEO

Fistic folk who travelled last night to Castle bowl had their appetite for punch fully appeased and the ancient riddle "How good is Henry Firpo" remains unsolved. There is one certainty, however, and that is Firpo won the decision over Sam Bruce, Buffalo, in 10 hot, rapid-fire rounds.

It was a fight that pleased every fan and fanette in the punch palace and at the end there wasn't much to choose between them. Firpo weighed 157½ and Bruce 151 3-4 and no doubt the extra poundage that Firpo carried had considerable bearing on the outcome.

Judge Tommy Jones called the tilt a draw and George Chip, former middleweight champion of the world, the other fistic jurist, gave the fight to Firpo. Due to the disagreement Eddie Kennedy, referee, had to cast a vote and he voted for Firpo which gave the Louisville battler the award.

Firpo forced the fighting from start to finish. Bruce excelled, at close range and Firpo had the best of the long shot fighting. The pace was fast and healthy swats to the jaw in the last part of the fight temporarily slowed them up. They fought so earnestly they failed to hear the last bell.

According to the fans who crowded into Castle bowl, it was the best bout that Eddie Fritz has staged during the last three years and as some of the fans present thought Bruce should have got an even break it is likely that Bruce and Firpo may be rematched.

Thomas Beats Mazeo

Jimmy Thomas, Pittsburgh, defeated Pete Mazeo, Cleveland, in a fast six round semi-final. Thomas scored a knockdown in the fourth round. It was a battle that had the fans cheering but Thomas bored in constantly and Pete was tired in the last couple of chapters. They are bantams.

Marshal Couette, Cleveland, and Al Gruver, Akron, staged a thrilling four round duel with the decision going to the flashy Frenchman but Gruver put up a great fight. The featherweights moved fast, were busy every second but Marshal carried too many guns for the Akronite.

Ray Ritchie of this city dropped the four round decision to Young Di Muccio, also of New Castle. The bantamweights were even in the first few rounds but Di Muccio came along in the last part of the fight. Ritchie hurt his hand in the third round. He broke it two months ago. They are bantamweights.

Warren Farrow of New Castle took the decision from Nick Gruber of Aliquippa in four rounds. The heavyweights threw a thousand swings. Farrow fought the best fight of his career last night. Gruber stood toe to toe but Farrow's extra weight helped to wear Nick down and he lost.

Eddie Kennedy refereed the bouts and he made a hit with the fans. George Chip, former middleweight champion and Tommy Jones a former lightweight were the judges. Pete Capitola kept time and Al Snyder the boy with the circus spieler's voice was the announcer.

Some 10,000 trees of a dozen varieties will be planted in the public park of Amarillo, Tex., during March.

A SAD, SAD STORY — BY RUBE GOLDBERG

Castle Hills Golf Course Is Beauty

New Golf Course Will Appeal To Golfers Of City This Summer

First Nine Holes To Be Used —Course Open To Public May 15

When Dame Nature built Lawrence County's hills and valley's, she must have had the golfers in mind. Pick out a plot of 300 or more acres anywhere in the county and you have the making of a good golf course.

Spend a lot of money on it, trap it and seed it, and have some golf architect do tricks with it and you have a golf course that can't be surpassed in this part of the country. That's what Max Ludwig has done out on his 350 acres back of the Wilmington road near Walmo, and on Friday afternoon, May 15, when Castle Hills Golf Course is opened to the public, the golfer who goes out will be treated to a bundle of surprises, all of them pleasant.

Plenty of Everything

The new course has plenty of everything it takes to make a real golf course—Rolling hills that sweep out before your view, with wide, well trapped greens daring you to come on, hundreds of yards away. Ditches that spell despair for the dub, and dog legs that taunt even the good golfer.

Greens such as you never imagined playing on. Most of them are 10,000 feet square, which means that Castle Hills has no "napkin" greens on it. Even the tees are commodious and these have from 3000 to 500 square feet in them.

The bane of the golfing fraternity, soggy fairways in spring, will be unknown at Castle Hills. Thirty thousand feet of drain tile underlie the course and already the fairways have the springy, spongy feel that sends golfers greenward rejoicing.

As for the general scenic beauty of the course, it's hardly worth while attempting to describe it here. You wouldn't believe it anyway. But if you don't get an eyeful of scenery playing on Castle Hills after it opens, it's because you are keeping your eye on the ball, before and after your shot.

Hundreds of Evergreens

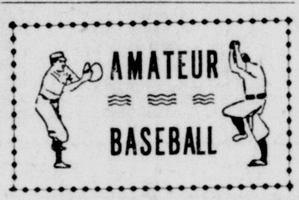

The course isn't in the shape yet that it will be in a year or so, and you couldn't expect it to be. But the possibilities are there, wonderful possibilities that promise long days of sporty golf when Nature sods the fairways as she will later.

The course might be called Evergreen Hills and not be far wrong. Max Ludwig, the owner, has set out hundreds of spruces, pines, junipers and the rest of the lovely evergreens that make for beauty, and down the middle of the course is a forest that promises shade if you want it, and also promises some sweet times shooting out hooked and sliced shots.

Quietly, Mr. Ludwig has been going ahead with Castle Hills for a year. To his friends he has said little, certain that nothing he could say would give them an adequate idea of what the course was. Now it's ready for opening on Friday, May 15, and it is better than an even bet that the golfers of Lawrence County will go for Castle Hills in a large, spontaneous way.

Only the first nine holes will be used for a while. This round is par 36. Number one is 320 yards, par 4; number two is 183 yards, par 3; number three is 366 yards, par 4; number four is 480 yards, par 5; number five is 465 yards, par 5; number six is 383 yards, par 4; number seven is 198 yards, par 3; number eight is 440 yards, par 4; and number nine is 350 yards, par 4.

Castle Hills will be a fee course with popular prices prevailing. Fifty cents will get you nine holes, seventy-five will get you eighteen and a dollar lets you play from dawn until the wife calls up for dinner. Annual fees are fifteen dollars.

The Young Eagles defeated the Spring Hill Midgets by a 6-5 score in a contest played at Glasser's field. Mescal on the rubber for the winners faned nine men and allowed but two hits.

Any Junior teams in the city desiring games with the West Pittsburg Cubs are asked to call 11-J and ask for Francis.

South Side To Have Two Courts

City Council Promises To Grant South Side Two Courts For Summer Months

It was learned today from an official of the South Side Board of trade that the city council has promised to grant the South Side two tennis courts for the summer months. The courts if secured will be constructed near Big Run creek and East Long avenue.

The South Side merchants are trying to get a single and a double court.

Merchants Trim South Hills 5-0

The Highland Merchants defeated the South Hills team 5 to 0 last night at the Highland Field. T. Cannon, Sergeant and Lamm divided pitching honors between them for seven innings, allowing only three safe wallops. Carr, Chill and Sergeant featured with two base hits.

Will Play With Struthers, Ohio

George Byak and Andy Bellock, two well-known baseball players of the South Side, have signed to play with a Struthers, O., team, it was learned today.

Both have seen much action on the sandlot, having played with numerous teams in this district.

Inter-Class Track Meet Starts Today

A. C. Hyde and Dr. W. D. Cleland, board members, will determine the site for the playing field.

The lineup will consist of some of the best talent in New Castle, and games will be played with some of the best independent teams in Lawrence and Beaver counties.

A complete checkup on business matters pertaining to the association's recent banquet at the Cathedral will be made.

Fourteen Teams Now In Mushball League

The New Castle Mushball League held a hectic session last night. It lasted for two hours and a half. Much was accomplished. It is hoped that the league can get started on Monday night, May 18.

There were fourteen managers present at the meeting last night It is earnestly hoped that sixteen teams will join the league, making two eight-team leagues. It is understood that the Spencers are coming back into the league. The American Can Works last night asked for a franchise in the Class A league and were accepted. B. Ellis will manage the Can Works team.

They will have a report ready for Friday night when the league reconvenes.

The league secretary "Dutch" Laurell was instructed to send the school board a letter of thanks for the granting of the use of Washington Field for the league this year.

The rules committee through Howard Reed, chairman, reported a set of rules. The rules will be published tomorrow.

It was voted upon to secure contracts this year and each manager must hand in contracts of new players 48 hours before the player takes the field. Each team can sign 18 men for play.

It was voted upon that a player can play in only one Mushball league in New Castle. There was considerable argument over this motion, but it was finally passed.

A schedule committee consisting of Arnold "Fiz" Frazier, George Harper, Fornatoro, Castele, Aller and Clark was appointed by President Walther.

The next meeting is on Friday night at the "Y" at 8:30 o'clock Daylight Saving Time.

Wilson-Hornsby In Bitter Feud

Hack Wilson Is Jealous Of Way Roger Has Been Pounding Pellet

OPEN WARFARE IS BELIEVED LOOMING

By COPELAND C. BURG
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, May 5.—One of the most bitter feuds in the history of baseball has developed between Rogers Hornsby, the new manager of the Chicago Cubs, and Hack Wilson, his center fielder and 1930 home run champion, according to reports from the west.

The gossips have it that Wilson, who never liked Hornsby anyway, was so burned up when Rogers' mighty club early this season started to take the play away from him, that he went into a big sulk, stepping up to the plate with a dont-care air like the winner of the booby prize at a coffee klatch. But this rumor was somewhat belied today for the slugging hero of last year got a homer yesterday as the Cubs tin-canned the Cincy Reds, 13 to 1.

Hornsby Slugging.

But it was only his second four-base of the season and just look what Manager Hornsby has to dangle in front of the Chicago fans. He is leading the National League with five homers, is fourth in leading hitters with .390 and yesterday he got three hits in all, one more than Hack, besides making Wilson take on a tinge of jade by driving in three runs.

Some of the greatest dramas of baseball are played behind the scenes, but if the persistent rumors out of Chicago are true, here is one thrilling battle that may reach a climax right out in the front yard. Wilson is as pugnacious as a woman at a firesale and if he gets mad enough about it, he will attempt to publicly slap down Rogers, collapsible heel and all.

The New York Giants moved close on the league leading Cardinals of St. Louis, who were idle, by clipping the Brooklyn Robins 6 to 3. Spitters by Mitchell, who allowed only six hits, caused the Robins' dismay.

Senators Down Yankees.

Lazerri's bobble and some plain and fancy hitting by the Senators in the sixth inning gave Washington five runs and finally defeat of the Yankees, 7 to 3.

The Athletics' pitchers evidently became confused and thought they belonged to their brothers, the Phillies, for they were helpless before the Boston Red Sox hitters, who basketed 15 clouts to win 7 to 5. Rothrock and Pickering homered.

Brandt gave the Phillies only three hits and won for the Boston Braves 4 to 3. Red Worthington, rookie, got three safeties for the Braves.

Goslin homered as the St. Louis Browns humbled the Cleveland Indians, 3 to 1.

McManus and H. Walker led Detroit's hitters in an attack on the White Sox who contributed four errors to aid in the Tigers' 9 to 3 grab.

East Side Nine Trims Highland

In a game played on the Lehigh field on Monday night the East Side Tigers defeated the Highland Stars by a 13-7 count. Herbold was on the mound for the winners.

He allowed three bingles. W. Ramsey featured for the winners with a home run. S. Ramsey and Shaffer on the rubber for the Highland team was touched for twelve bingles.

Ball Yard Banter

By Central Press

Jimmy McAleer's death in Youngstown, O., revealed to many younger fans for the first time that Cleveland was once a National league city. Cleveland was a member of the National league 20 years and it was with that club that McAleer broke into the major leagues.

The Cleveland Spiders were a tough crew when McAleer, in 1889 joined them, but Jimmy was not known to pull any rough stuff.

The Spiders never won a pennant but they made life miserable for a lot of clubs that did. Jimmy played with the Clevelands until 1898 and in that time the club finished second three times, but the fates were against it.

McAleer played center field and did a swell job of it. He was a shining light in the garden, though he was flanked by such brilliants as Jess Burkett in left and George Davis in right.

The immortal Cy Young was one of Cleveland's hurlers and behind the bat was none other than the illustrious Chief Zimmer. Pat Tebeau, Cupid Childs, Larry Twitchell, Buck Ewing, Ed Delehanty, Jack Doyle, Roge Connors and a host of other old-time famous pastimed with the club during McAleer's day.

The Clevelands were rated the fightingest team in the National save, possibly the Baltimore Orioles which boasted a lineup of battlers

Fights between opposing players, managers and umpires and teammates made ball parks lively in those days and the spiders always tried to give more than they had to take. The eternal scrapping finally soured the city on baseball and the franchise was moved to St Louis.

Flats Open Season With 7-6 Victory

South Side Team Opens Sandlot Season By Topping Soda Jerkers In Fast Game

In a fast game played on the Clifton Flats field on Monday night the Clifton Flats baseball team opened the sandlot season auspiciously by winning a 7-6 verdict over the Soda Jerkers.

Wilson and Shoaff hurled for the Flats team while Mrozek pitched for the losers. The Jerkers took a two run lead in the opening frame. The South Siders came back with five runs in the second inning. Again the Jerkers took the lead by crossing home plate four times in the third. In the fourth the Flats tallied two more runs, enough to win the contest.

J. Fruit and Leckwart featured for the winners, each clouting a tripple.

Where Herr Max Will Defend His Crown

Burry, Burton, New Castle Boys Make Good On Westminster Team

Both Are Distance Runners On Titan Track Outfit This Year

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, May 5.—Two New Castle boys, Harold Burton and Harold Burry, were responsible for good showing in the distance events when Westminster's track team defeated Grove City a week ago last Saturday. Both men are expected to help the Titans in their quest for a victory over Allegheny at Meadville this Saturday.

Burton, a sophomore, was a member of the varsity cross-country squad in last fall. This spring he has been runing the two-mile, although the one-mile event is his race. In the opening meet against Grove City Burton placed second. With two weeks of training between that opening day and next Saturday he should improve considerably.

Burry, a freshman who entered college in the second semester, won his letter in the Grover meet. A strong runner, he tied for first in the mile run with the veteran Smalley of the Titan team, and then took first in the half-mile event. Burry is a former New Castle high track star. He should account for needed points against Allegheny on Saturday.

Announce Titan Tennis Schedule

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., May 5—Attorney Joseph McFate, New Castle, coach of the Westminster College tennis team, announces that seven matches have been arranged for the Titan racqueteers to date. The team handicapped in spring training because of lack of courts, is rounding into shape for the opening contests.

This afternoon at Grove City the Titans will face their rival Grover racqueteers. Geneva will be played at New Wilmington on May 7. On May 9, Bethany will be met at home. Grove City will be played at New Wilmington on May 25. Geneva will be played at Beaver Falls on May 30 at 9 o'clock in the morning.

Captain John Witherspoon, in commenting on the schedule, stated that the matches with Waynesburg and Bethany away from home will be scheduled on successive days, making a two-day trip for the racquet team.

Senators Prove Jinx For Yanks

Yankees May Lose Pennant By Inability To Beat Washington Team

RED SOX SPURT HELPS YANKEES

By LES CONKLIN
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, May 5.—Inability to beat Washington, the same jinx that cost them second place in the American League race last season, is likely to eliminate the New York Yankees as a pennant contender this season.

The Yanks could have tied Washington for second place in 1930 by capturing nine of their twenty two games with the Senators, but won only five and finished eight full games behind Walter Johnson's crew. This year the Nationals again have the Indian sign on the New Yorkers, having won all four of their starts against Joe McCarthy's men, not counting one game that resulted in a tie.

Only the surprising strength of the Boston Red Sox against Washington and Philadelphia has enabled the Yanks to stay as high as third place, their present position in the standing. The Boston club, by some hook or crook, has managed to win four out of seven games with the Senators and Athletes. The Yanks have failed to take full advantage of this unexpected help by Boston, the weak sister of the eastern division of the league.

On April 24th the Yankees led the league, with a margin of half a game over Cleveland, the nearest contender. They started to slip the next day and since that time have won only two games out of nine, with one contest resulting in a deadlock.

Grays Will Play Bessemer Team

Wednesday night at 6 o'clock Daylight Savings Time, the New Castle Grays will play the Bessemer team of the Lawrence County League. The game will be played at Bessemer.

Thursday the Grays will meet the West Pittsburg Garlands at West Pittsburg, at 6 o'clock Daylight Savings Time.

Today the Boro A. C. and Grays will play at Clifton Flats Field. At West Pittsburg the Grays will likely face Brakovich, with the Grays using either Waters, Gray or Cox. Midnight Weyman will start against the strong Bessemer club.

A game is being arranged with the Ellwood City team of the Beaver County League. H. Bradley is manager of the Grays.

The Virgin Islands deserve credit. They didn't say they'd rather be a poor house than a poor President.

Spying On Sports

by BILL RITT

Central Press Sports Editor

This new style of wrestling may be all right for the young whippersnappers who do not know the difference between catch-as-catch-can and the Greco-Roman style, but the oldtimers no like it at all.

"Why" the bearded followers of the mat business snort, "it isn't wrestling at all.

Imagine a championship match lasting only eight minutes and some odd seconds! Shades of Yusiff Mahmout and Tom Jenkins! What is this world, at least the wrestling world, coming to, anyway!

Ed Lewis, better known as the Strangler, one of the two current heavyweight champions, is the cause of it all.

The other day Lewis tossed an opponent in less than nine minutes, something heretofore positively unheard of. To the oldtimers it was the same as watching a one-inning ball game.

It wasn't like that in the old days—before, and for some years after the war. Grapplers in those times grappled not for minutes, but for hours. A fall inside of an hour was considered a unappy bout, equivalent of a one-round knockout in boxing.

You could arrive at a wrestling fiesta an hour late and still see the show. All you would have missed would have been an exhibition of the various holds each of the opponents had learned. Sometimes the mat athletes went through their whole repertoire before one suffered the ignominy of having his shoulders placed gently but firmly in the resin.

And everyone was happy because he figured he had his full money's worth.

A veteran wrestling fan—in the old days—could come to a match with his favorite book or a sheaf of copy paper on which to figure his income tax to while away the early hours of the bout.

After about an hour's perusal of his novel or favorite newspaper the oldtimer would glance at his watch.

"H'm" you'd hear his h'm, "two more half-Nelsons, a leg split and a full toe-hold and it will be over!"

And right on the dot—blam!—the match was over.

But now all is changed.

When wrestling first came back to popular favor a year or so ago the first falls, it was noticed, began to take place much earlier. Some occurred within a half-hour from the time the opponents began their preliminary grimacing and grunting.

It was blamed on the daylight-saving mania and oldtimers confidently expected a quick return to the old order.

But now Lewis has shortened the time to less than 10 minutes. This makes things look serious.

No wonder oldtimers do not like it. Under present conditions they must keep their eyes glued on the mat or they may miss the whole show. And keeping one's eyes glued on a wrestling match comes under the head of hard work.

You see, it's necessary to cut wages 10 cents an hour so that the total for dividends won't fall below five million.

NEW OLDSMOBILE IS FAST · · you can TAKE THE LEAD and KEEP IT

The Four-Door Sedan

If you like speed, you'll thrill to the new Oldsmobile's performance. For, in addition to its time-tested features of stamina and dependability, Oldsmobile's rugged engine now incorporates features which add new zest and pleasure to driving.

New down-draft carburetion brings increased power—with higher speed and faster acceleration. You can take the lead in traffic . . . gaining speed swiftly and quietly with Oldsmobile's new Quiet Second Gear. You can hold your lead on the highway . . . running smoothly and quietly at all speeds because of features such as the new crankshaft balancer and the new carburetor-silencer. A deeper, sturdier frame, an unusually low center of gravity, and more perfectly balanced weight combine to give the car almost uncanny roadability.

Oldsmobile's Syncro-Mesh transmission—a feature heretofore found only in higher priced cars—eliminates gear clashing. Shifting from low into second and from second to high can be done with absolute smoothness and silence. And the shift from high back to second—for a quick burst of speed in traffic—can be made with equal facility.

If you haven't driven this new Oldsmobile, there's a thrill in store for you. For the new Oldsmobile is the kind of performer that wins friends quickly . . . an alert, capable, and unusually fast automobile.

CONSIDER THE DELIVERED PRICE AS WELL AS THE LIST PRICE WHEN COMPARING AUTOMOBILE VALUES. WE WILL BE VERY GLAD TO DETAIL FOR YOU THE VERY REASONABLE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN OLDSMOBILE'S LIST AND DELIVERED PRICES.

NEW YORK STOCKS

Professionals Have Control Of Market

NEW YORK, May 5.—After a brief advance to slightly higher price levels this morning, the Industrial stocks and Specialties ran into a stone wall of professional selling, and dipped back to their opening levels. The Coppers were again unsettled by reports of a sagging of the Red Metal market to 9 cents a pound, though it is believed that very little Copper was sold at that price.

U. S. Steel was among the leaders of the early rally, advancing a point to 45¾ and new gains of a point or less were recorded for Consolidated Gas, New York Central, J. I. Case and other favorites. Noranda Mines was under pressure and fell off 2 points to 24, while Anaconda Copper fell off to 26.

With outside speculative interest reduced to a minimum, the stock market was under the control of the professionals, who endeavored to step nimbly between the narrow price fluctuations of the well known stocks. Prices near the noon hour were virtually unchanged from the yesterday's closing figures, with the bulls having the best of the bargain in a dozen or two of the favorites. Radio Corporation ahead about a point, in response to the 1930 earnings statement, which showed the preferred dividend fully covered, with 2 cents a share for the common. Forecasts of the report did not quite cover preferred dividend requirements.

Trading slowed up in all markets near the noon hour. Cotton sagged a point or two, while Grain prices were irregularly higher. Call money renewed at 1½ per cent.

(International News Service)

MT. CLEMENS, Mich., May 5.—State-wide search was under way today for a crazed man, described to police as a "foreigner", who tied two boys hand and foot and placed them on a railroad track to die.

The boys saved their own lives by rolling off the rails into a ditch from which they were liberated by their mother several hours later. The maniac was last seen hitch-hiking a ride for a truck near New Haven.

The victims were Edward Spoutz, 13, and his brother Charles, 14.

The Decision

The court held against Jerry.

The judges reasoned thus:

The question here was whether a deputy, suspecting a person of having committed a felony, may detain him until he may be brought to court. Well, he could if he had reasonable grounds for suspicion.

WILL CHAPLIN FIND NEW LOVE ON EUROPEAN TRIP?

All Europe is wondering whether Charlie Chaplin will take with him to America when he departs a new leading woman, or a sweetheart, or both. London is buzzing over his interest in Patricia Detering, right, an obscure picture actress and photographer's model, and the continent is talking about his latest "find," Floricel Constantinesco, beautiful schoolgirl of Bucharest, Rumania, left, who has been making screen tests in Paris. Chaplin's former wife, Lita Grey Chaplin, the mother of his two sons, was a schoolgirl when she met him and played in "The Kid." She was a Chaplin "find."

Bradford Woman Drowns In Creek

Body Of Woman Found In Creek—Had Been Suffering With Bad Tooth

(International News Service)

BRADFORD, Pa., May 5.—Aided by the family and friends of the dead woman, police today recovered the body of Mrs. Katherine Suppa, 57, from Tuna Creek, a small river which flows in back of the Suppa home.

Mrs. Suppa had been missing since last night and had been suffering with a bad tooth, members of the family said. She had declined medical attention.

Her body was discovered after a three hour search.

Suffering with pain, the dead woman had lain down fully dressed at 11 o'clock last night. Early today a son came to her room and asked for his mother. Search was begun when the mother was found to be missing.

A coroner's investigation was started to determine whether the death was accidental.

Ralph Suppa and seven children survive.

Leaders Advance In Training Work

Boy Scout Leaders Here Gather Here Last Night; Ellwoodians To Meet

The Scout Leaders' training course meeting held at the First Christian church last night saw some interesting work on first aid covered by patrol leaders at the patrol metings. Several songs were sung, the "One Finger, One Thumb, One Hand" song proving too much for some of the men. A simple intelligence test was given to demonstrate how much persons varied,—no two scouts have the same intelligence quotient. Senior Patrol Leader Sid Smith explained the First Aid baseball game. The executive gave a short talk on the organized troop committee and how its works with the troop and scoutmaster. All newly organized troops have this lineup, and the plan is working well with them.

The session on next Monday evening will be the last indoor one for the New Castle district seminar. The final one of this part of the course will be an afternoon hike on Saturday, June 6, to Camp Phillips; and it seems likely that the Ellwood district will join in this; so as to handle both districts at once. The Ellwood men meet this Friday evening for their fourth session. Both districts have had very good average attendances.

Revival Services Continue This Week

The City Rescue Mission Will Bring Campaign To A Close At End Of Week

This week the services of the City Rescue Mission, with Rev. C. A. Blackmore of Erie as the speaker and the Jubilee Singers of Chicago as an added attraction, are being continued in the First Baptist church and the end of the week will see the close of a successful campaign for the saving of souls for Jesus Christ.

Monday evening a large delegation was present from Unionville and many ministers of the city were in attendance and among the audience was seen the face of Homer Welsh, the noted song leader.

Immediately following the regular meeting there was an intensive prayer service and keen interest in this gripped the audience.

This evening will be observed as "Adult Bible Class" night and many classes of the city churches are planning to attend in a body. Wednesday evening the choirs of the Third U. P. and the Croton Methodist churches will participate in the song service.

Rev. Blackmore's topic this evening will be "Is Confessing Christ Reasonable." There will be an interesting song by Mrs. J. Weathers.

Two Children Are Burned To Death, Father Arrested

Mother And Daughter Badly Burned And May Die —Were Recently Insured

COLORADO HOME TRAGEDY SCENE

(International News Service)

GREELEY, Colo., May 5.—A tragedy that nearly wiped out the family of James V. Foster, 48, a salesman, was revealed today with the discovery of the body of Darline, 19-month-old daughter of Foster, burned to a crisp in their home here. Gerald, aged 3, died later from burns.

The wife and mother, Myrtle, 40, and Mildred, 12, another daughter, were badly burned and it is feared they will die.

Foster was arrested later.

Police investigation disclosed that coal oil from a jug had been poured over Mrs. Foster and the children while they lay asleep. A match was touched to the bed and the victims became living torches.

Police say Foster had recently taken out insurance on every member of the family. He is being held in jail here.
